Nelson Tells Plans to Fight State Accident Problem, Cut Spending

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Gov. Nelson said today he will support an expansion of the state highway patrol as a means of fighting the alarming state highway accident problem.

The governor said he will again ask the legislature to authorize an additional 150 men for the patrol, which now has about 350 officers, but he recalled that he had made the same request two years ago and that both Democrats and Republicans in the legislature had declined to support him.

The governor's comment came at a news conference where he continued to maintain his silence on the tax revision recommendations recently brought to him by his advisory commission, while emphasizing the magnitude of the budget balancing problem facing him and the legislature which convenes Wednesday for its 1961 session.

The governor for the first time put a figure of $90 million on the new state tax revenues that will be needed for his budget, aside from any plans to relieve the burden of local property taxes.

He said he likes the idea of general state and local tax revision as urged upon him by the advisory commission of his own choosing, but he said he has not yet decided what sections of it to report he will endorse when he addresses the legislature with a tax and finance message in about two weeks.

Nelson also told reporters that he is cutting spending requests rigorously.

Education Cuts

"I'm cutting as hard as I can," he said, recalling that requests amount to about $118 million above presently authorized spending.

He illustrated with a forecast that his budget will recommend eight or nine additional employees at a state hospital which has asked for 10.

Youth Dies in Forest Junction Car Accident

Michael Mathiebe First Calumet County Road Fatality of '61

A Forest Junction youth was killed when his car hit a tree near his home about 9:20 p.m. Sunday. His death was the first Calumet County traffic fatality of the year and raised the state's road toll to 18, compared with 16 on this date a year ago.

Michael Mathiebe, 21, was alone in the car when it went out of control on a town road a half mile south of Forest Junction. It swerved across the road and then into the right ditch, where it skidded broadside into a 14-inch diameter tree, snapping it off. The car then rolled for 50 feet before landing on its wheels some 530 feet from where it went out of control, County Patrolman Irvan M. Vice said.

Mathiebe was found lying beside the car by Edgar Steinbach, route 1, Brillion, a farmer who heard the crash and called authorities and an ambulance. Steinbach said the youth apparently lived about 12 minutes after the crash and may have crawled from the car.

Skull Fracture

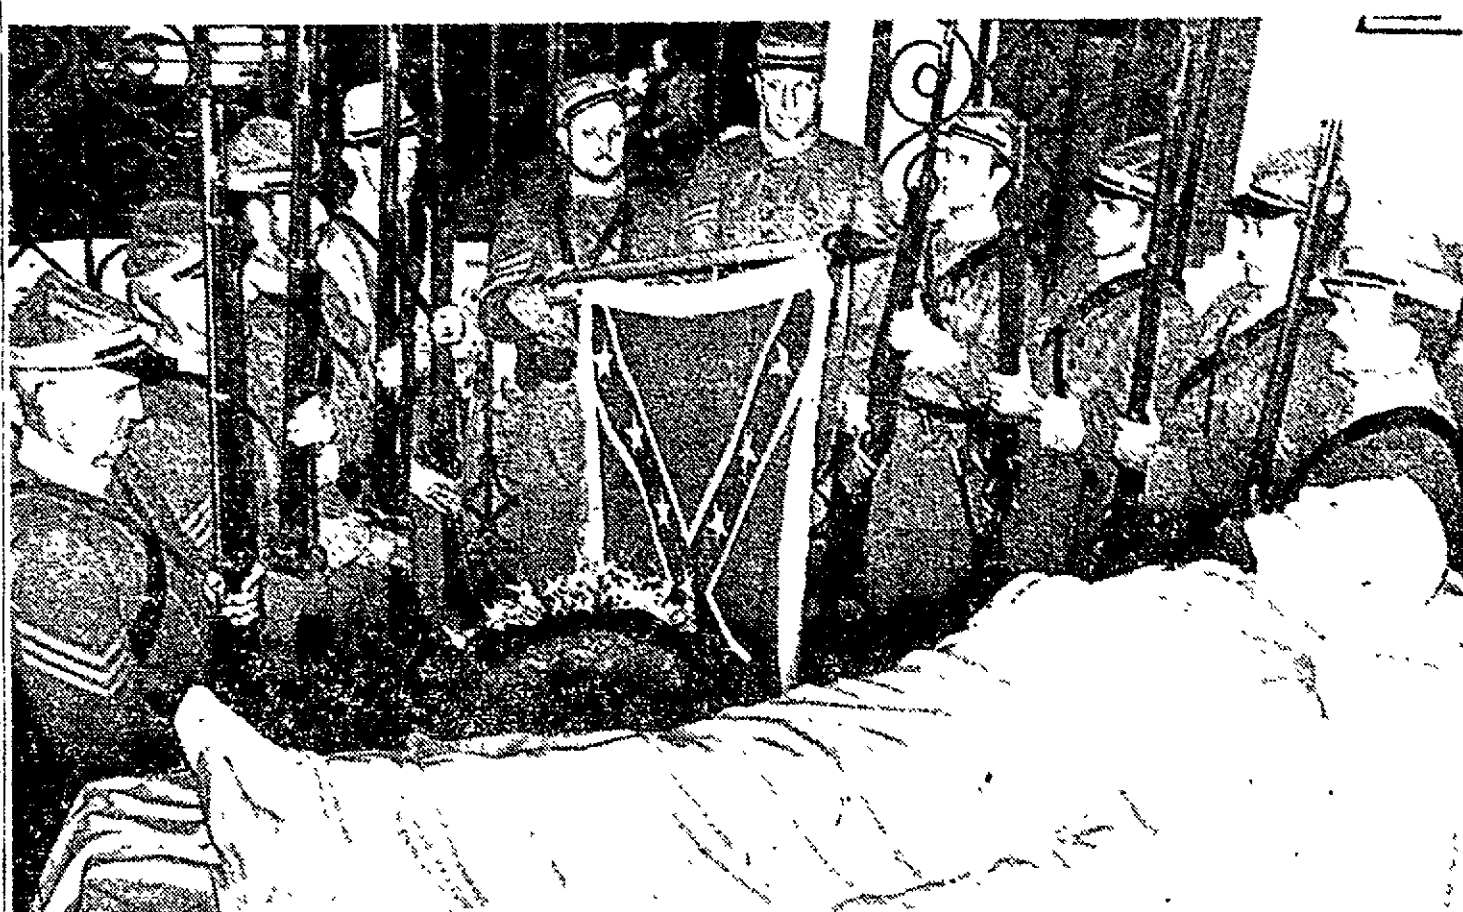

Death was caused by a skull fracture and severe internal injuries, County Coroner Leroy Hughes said.

Mathiebe is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mathiebe, three brothers and a sister. An older brother, Richard, was killed Aug. 18, 1958, in a similar car crash on Highway 10 east of Forest Junction.

He was a member of the Forest Junction Fire Department and was president of the class of 1957.

Rush Efforts To Reinforce Waterfront

HAVANA (AP).—Regular army units moved into Havana's waterfront today and set up military tents near the memorial to the battleship Maine in feverish preparations to repulse what Prime Minister Fidel Castro calls "an attack from the North."

The semi-official newspaper Revolucion in banner headlines said a "Yankee aircraft carrier" had arrived at Guantanamo Bay, the big U.S. Naval base in Eastern Cuba.

The newspaper apparently referred to the 45,000-ton supercarrier Franklin D. Roosevelt leading a fleet of 150 Atlantic fleet warships on annual maneuvers in the Caribbean opening today.

A navy spokesman in Puerto Rico said the warships will go in and out of the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, the last U.S. foothold in Cuba, "in the normal run of things."

Revolucion also charged counter-revolutionaries were plotting to bomb Cuba's oil refineries.

Try to Feed Troops

In an apparent effort to offset a manpower shortage caused by the callup of workers' militia to man coastal defenses, the Sugar Workers union began offering bonuses for superproduction in the harvesting of cane.

A "committee for the Aid and Defense of the Revolution" was set up to help feed the thousands of militiamen who have been in defense positions or held in camps for the past 10 days. Revolucion said the committee will collect and distribute canned food and

Patrons Flee Blaze $100,000 Damage In New London Fire

NEW LONDON — Damages may run as high as $100,000 in a fire that destroyed Prah's Alleys and Newsstand and caused extensive damage to Emil's Bar and the Rieckmann Shoe Store on North Water Street Sunday night.

Flames engulfed the front section of Prah's Alleys shortly after the blaze was discovered about 7:15 p. m. Some 14 patrons in the bowling alley-restaurant fled the building and Lee Macklin, owner of the Grand Theater separated from the fire scene by a 10-foot alley, evacuated 150 patrons.

Fire Chief Gus A. Fearig, one of the first to arrive at the scene, said there was a "puff," shaking the building, as he attempted to open the front door. The blast knocked out two of the large plate glass windows.

Battled Flames

New London firemen spent the night battling the fire after it was brought under control by New London and Hortonville fire departments. Mopping up operations were conducted this morning by the New London firefighters.

The Rieckmann Shoe Store, abutting the east wall of the restaurant, was damaged and Harold Rieckmann, owner, reported the store will remain closed until the damages are repaired. A large section of the second story section of the Prah building crashed.

Rooming House Fire in Chicago Takes 4 Lives

CHICAGO (AP).—Four persons were killed early today when fire destroyed a north side rooming house.

The deaths brought the city's fire fatality toll since Christmas to 10.

Dead in today's blaze at 1015 N. Dakin St. were:

Albert Shorn, 62, a watchman who died in a leap from a third floor window; Sarah Harris, 77; Archie Moody, 45, and Folke Mattson, 49.

Firemen brought 15 residents of the building down ladders, and about 100 others fled the old brick building.

Bodies of Mrs. Harris, Moody and Mattson were found in their rooms on the third floor.

In another fire earlier in the night, Mrs. Betty Barbero, 50, was killed and six were taken to hospitals overcome by smoke or suffering fractures or cuts.

In the same neighborhood, four persons died Dec. 25 in an early morning apartment building blaze. Another fire, Dec. 29, took one man's life.

Prison Riot Ends In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP).—State police with shotguns, advancing behind a barrage of tear gas, quickly quelled an attempted escape at the Eastern State Penitentiary Sunday night.

Two guards were stabbed with makeshift knives, neither seriously. A convict received a skull fracture.

Fourteen convicts engineered the attempted break, state troopers said. The 14 opened the cell doors of hundreds of other prisoners in the maximum security block, apparently in a move to create confusion, but only 16 others left their cells.

The 14 surrendered meekly in a prison garage, giving up nine hostages. One of the hostages had been wounded. Four of the convicts were in guard uniforms.

Complete Surprise Aboard Star of West Narrated

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Although most historians and history books note the April 12 Confederate attack on Ft. Sumter as the starting date of the Civil War, the United States flag was first fired on 100 years ago today in Charleston harbor.

The unarmed steamer Star of the West was bringing men and supplies to the federal fort held by Maj. Robert Anderson. An eye-witness account of the hair-raising event was reprinted in the Appleton Crescent from the New York Evening Post. The name of the writer is

Bootle

Within two hours after Judge W. A. Bootle granted the stay and Negro attorneys turned to a high federal court in an effort to void his action, Vandiver told the legislators:

"As governor of this state and in league with the overwhelming majority of the people of Georgia, I propose that this historic General Assembly take the necessary action to afford to the parents and children of this state a new protection."

Vandiver was not specific in what he planned.

"We know not what the future holds," Vandiver said, "but we must provide a new plate or armor, gird ourselves against the sweeping and insidious onslaught of forced integration in Georgia schools."

Judge Bootle in Macon allowed the state of Georgia, which is vigorously opposing integration of White House conference on aging today to develop every opinion "no matter how bitterly opposed" in every litigant is entitled to an appeal.

Reunity Theme Of Pageantry

North and South In Tributes to Gens. Grant, Lee

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A nation once torn asunder by a Civil War officially opened the 100th anniversary observance of that tragic era Sunday with solemn pageantry and prayer.

One theme was dominant in the ceremonies: the nation had been able to reunite itself after the war.

Both North and South paid tribute to the commanding generals of the rival armies that battled for four long years in the country's costliest conflict until World War II.

Troops in full dress uniform stood under chilly, leaden skies in New York City while wreaths were laid in honor of the North-ern commander, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, at his tomb on the bank of the Hudson River.

The crusty old general's grandson, Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant III, chairman of the National Civil War Centennial Commission, placed the first of four wreaths in front of the tomb.

Voters Back Algeria Plan

Margin Short of 65 Per Cent Sought By French Leader

PARIS (AP).—President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian program won the approval of 54 per cent of the eligible voters of France and Algeria yesterday, short of the 65 per cent the president reportedly hoped for.

Although abstentions cut the "yes" vote below the endorsement De Gaulle sought, there was every indication the president would consider the outcome of the three-day referendum as a mandate to push ahead with his program.

De Gaulle has proposed more self-government at once for the North African territory and its Moslem majority and a self-determination referendum when the 6-year - old nationalist rebellion is ended.

Final official returns gave De Gaulle a majority of 75.25 per cent of the votes cast in France and 65.4 per cent in Algeria. But nearly 40 per cent of the voters in Algeria stayed home, and most of the abstainers were Moslems. In France 22.5 per cent did not vote.

The Moslem boycott ordered by the Nationalist rebels was particularly effective in Algiers and Oran, Algeria's two largest cities. As a result the French colonists cast the majority vote and voted overwhelmingly against De Gaulle.

Algeria and Oran were the only two departments in France or Algeria in which De Gaulle's proposal did not carry.

Old, New Events Share Spotlight In Today's News

The old and the new share the news spotlight these days as the country begins its observance of the centennial of the Civil War and a new administration prepares to take over in Washington.

The Post-Crescent for several months has been carrying items on events that led up to the Civil War in the "One-Hundred Years ago" section on the editorial page. It will continue to do so. Today a special feature written by Reporter Lillian Mackesy and beginning on Page 1 tells about the first firing on the U.S. flag which occurred 100 years ago today, three months before the attack on Fort Sumter. An Associated Press story on Page 1 tells about the opening of the centennial observance nationally.

On Page A-7 is the first in an AP series of five stories describing the problems confronting President-elect John F. Kennedy, who will take the oath of office Jan. 20 and set out to fulfill a campaign pledge to "get America moving again."

Plan New Conference

Kennedy, Eisenhower Likely to Meet Jan. 19

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP).—briefly on the steps and, grinning, President-elect John F. Kennedy told the students: "I am here to go over your another conference with President (Nathan M.) Eisenhower. It probably will be held in Washington Jan. 19, the day before Kennedy takes office."

Word of this plan circulated as the president-elect arrived at Harvard University for a meeting of the institution's board of overseers—a supervisory group of alumni. Kennedy, a graduate of Harvard, and one of the overseers, got a nostalgic welcome back to his alma mater.

Aid to Foreign Students

In advance of driving to the university from nearby Boston, Kennedy was urged to assert strong leadership and seek more money to promote world peace through American aid to foreign scholars.

The president-elect stayed overnight at his Boston apartment and got a rousing greeting from a crowd of several hundred as he left for Harvard.

It was a bitter cold day, but Kennedy—as usual—was without a hat. Nor did he wear an overcoat as he walked a few steps from the apartment house door to a closed automobile.

At Harvard's famed yard, part of the university campus, Kennedy got another big welcome from students who cheered him as he entered University Hall.

There were cries of "speech, speech," and Kennedy halted

Start Discussing Program

Ike Urges Delegates on Aging to Give Full Study to Every Opinion

WASHINGTON (AP).—President Eisenhower urged delegates to the conference of 2,500 delegates to the Constitution Hall, the President said that is what he understands.

He said he hoped the four-day deliberations would bring out material on problems of the aging that congress can use in its deliberations.

He thus took recognition of a controversy that was raging even before the conference opened — how to finance medical care for the aged.

The 70-year-old chief executive, about to retire from the White House job, laughingly said that he did not want "to get too definite about this aged business."

He said he was not going to express his own views, because they already are well-known, "and besides I'm not a delegate."

He said he could not agree with those who thought the conference should not be held because they didn't agree with some aspect of it.

The President said he thought it was the purpose of such a nationwide conference to discuss opposing views and to see if a good and workable program could be developed.

Senate Prepares to Quiz Appointments

Douglas Dillon Scheduled to be First Up for Interview; Close Look at Bob Kennedy Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate hearings on President-elect John F. Kennedy's Cabinet appointments will start Wednesday. First to come under the Senate's "advise and consent" procedure will be Douglas Dillon, Kennedy's choice for secretary of the Treasury.

It was learned Sunday night that the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., has set Wednesday morning for a hearing on Dillon, one of two Republicans selected by Kennedy for the Cabinet.

The appointments cannot be sent officially to the Senate until after Jan. 20 when Kennedy takes office. But to speed things up, there's no rule against holding the necessary hearings earlier.

Quizzed At Length

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the new majority leader, over the weekend predicted speedy Senate confirmation of Kennedy's Cabinet choices. But he said he expects some of them to be quizzed at length.

Indications are that the president-elect's brother, Robert F. Kennedy, will get the closest look and the most general designation. It is the first time a president has named his brother to a Cabinet position. Robert Kennedy's age, 35, also has brought some mutterings from senators about his experience for the job as head of the Justice Department.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., Senate GOP leader, has promised detailed questioning of Robert Kennedy.

The Senate very rarely rejects a president's choice for a Cabinet post, but it has been done.

Two leaders of a move to make it easier to get action by the middle of the week. They are Sens. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

Stop Filibuster

Kuchel and Humphrey want the rule to be changed so that a filibuster can be stopped by the vote of 51 senators, a bare majority.

At present it takes two-thirds of senators present and voting, and Southern senators are against any change.

Kuchel and Humphrey want a test vote by midweek on the right of a member to "move the previous question"—a parliamentary procedure that would cut off debate and force a vote.

The House has used this rule for a long time, but the Senate has not for many years. Vice President Richard M. Nixon has held that it is proper in some circumstances.

Claim Number Of Americans Dead in Laos

Pro-Reds Declare Over 500 Rebels Killed, Wounded

MOSCOW (AP) — Pro-communist forces in Laos claimed today a number of Americans were among 20 foreign officers and men killed or wounded in recent fighting, Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency quoted a communique from the pro-communist Pathet Lao as saying a "vast region" had been brought under its control in the past four weeks.

"Five enemy battalions and 20 companies and several Thai units have been routed in battle," the communique said. "Over 500 rebels were killed or wounded, including 20 American, Thai and South Vietnamese officers and men."

The only American personnel known to have taken part in any operations in Laos are the U.S. military attaché with the American embassy and his staff. They have been flying reconnaissance missions over the battle area at the Laotian government's request. Their plane was hit once by machine gun fire and was fired on a second time, but no one was reported injured.

Formal Charge

Meanwhile, the South Viet Nam government made its first formal charge that Communist North Viet Nam, red China and Soviet Russia were threatening peace in South Viet Nam by aiding the Laotian rebels. A government source said the South Vietnamese liaison mission filed the charge with the three-nation International Control Commission.

South Viet Nam expressed fear its territory might be the next attack target and demanded that the control commission order the communists to withdraw their forces and war equipment from neighboring Laos.

The United States was reported encouraging Souvanna Phouma, deposed neutralist premier of Laos, to join Boun Oum's pro-Western Laotian regime. There were unconfirmed reports he has already expressed willingness to do so.

New Technique Used For Piercing Ears

RED BANK, N.J. (AP) — The age-old practice of piercing ears for earrings is being modernized, according to Jeweler Paul Seldin.

The old method was to force a probe through the flesh to a cork held on the other side of the lobe. But this painful system has been replaced by a spring-loaded device which, Seldin says, "permits greater accuracy and doesn't hurt a bit."

Through the centuries people have had their ears pierced for a number of reasons—to improve eyesight, guarantee good hearing, and ward off the evil eye. But the best reason, Seldin said, is insurance. "If you buy a pair of earrings for $1,000, you don't want them to fall off."

'Little Boy' Finds Size May Halt His Job, Cause Strike

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP)—Pint-sized Spencer Howden may lose his first job and cause a strike because at 16 he is only 4-feet-7 and weighs 87 pounds.

A factory surgeon has ruled him too small for industrial employment.

But 5,000 workers at the Perkins Diesel plant are rallying to defend him.

Spencer left school at Christmas with an ambition to become a draftsman. He passed the apprentice examination at Perkins with flying colors.

Word Spread

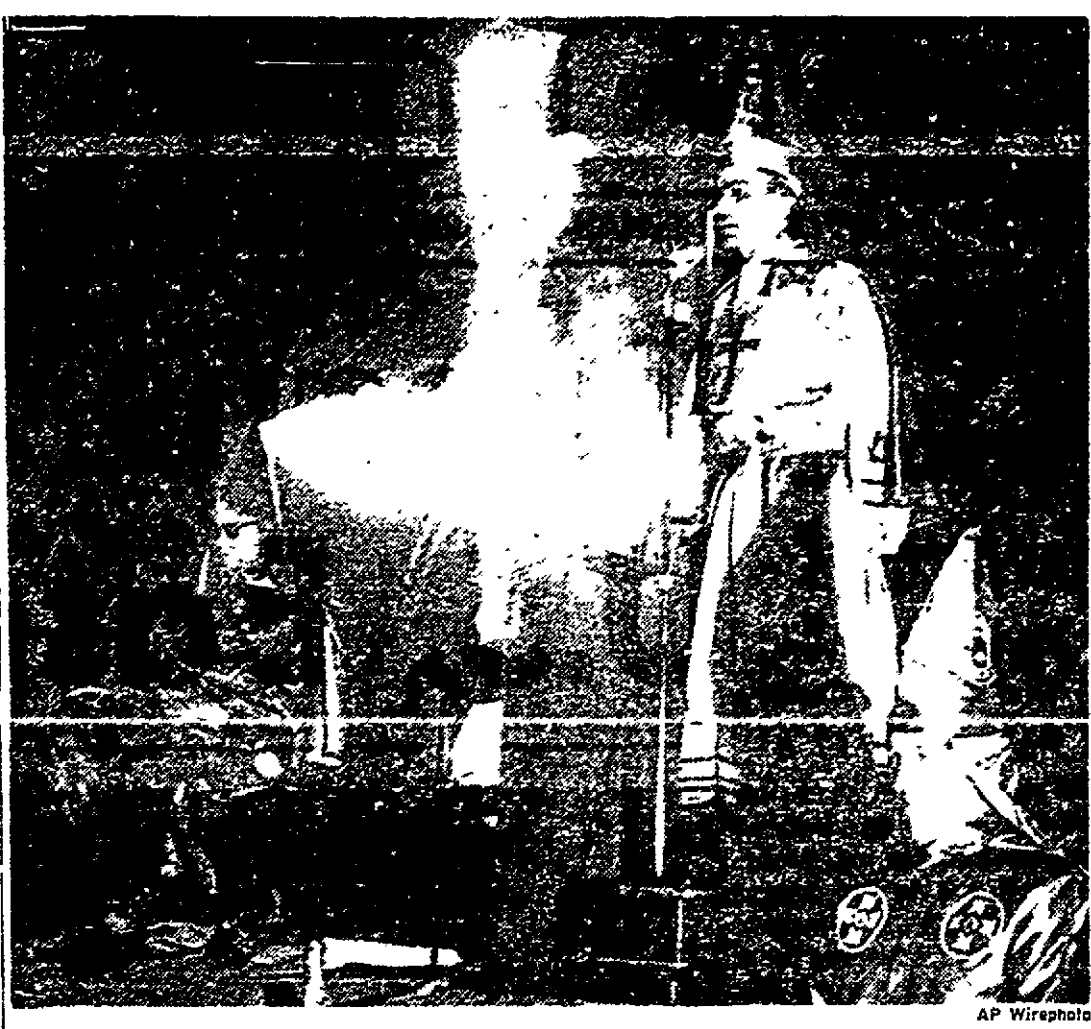

When he reported for work last Monday he was fitted with a special pair of overalls and given a box to stand on so he could reach his lathe. His fellow workers nicknamed him "King Size."

Then came the medical examination, and word spread around the factory that "King Size" had been fired.

"The men didn't like it," said Union Organizer Ron Waterson. "They were ready to strike on the spot."

"Now the boy has been suspended for a week with full pay while we negotiate on his future. This is a case of championing the underdog."

Explained a management spokesman: "The medical examination is compulsory under the Factory Act. Spencer was found to be unfit for this kind of work and the law requires that he should leave."

Imperial Wizard William Lee Davis, standing, Macon, Ga., with a blazing cross helping to light the scene, urges an estimated 300 Ku Klux Klansmen near Jacksonville, Fla., to lead in organizing a strong fight against integration. Klansmen from Florida, Georgia and several other states attended. Earlier many of them in full regalia rode in cars around Jacksonville's downtown area where racial fighting took place last August.

Scotland Yard Grabs Five Spy Suspects

Obtain Court Order to Fingerprint 3 Of Group Believed to be Canadians

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard obtained a court order today to take the fingerprints of three mysterious persons — believed to be Canadians — accused of stealing top research secrets of the British navy for a foreign power.

The three were bookseller Peter Kroger, 50; his wife, Helen, 50; and Gordon A. Lonsdale, 37, who described himself as a company director.

The court order was obtained at a hearing at which the three appeared with two codefendants, Henry F. Houghton, 55, and Ethel Gee, 46, both civilian employees of the top secret naval research station on the English Channel coast.

Detective Supt. George Smith of Scotland Yard told the magistrate the Krogers and Lonsdale had refused to let the police take their fingerprints and there is a "question of their nationality."

Smith did not disclose the foreign country for which the group was believed to be spying nor did he give any details of the stolen secrets.

Smith testified he arrested Houghton, Miss Gee and Lonsdale Saturday after seeing the woman pass Lonsdale a basket containing two parcels. Smith did not disclose what the parcels contained.

Later in the day Smith arrested the Krogers at their home.

The naval station where Houghton and Miss Gee worked is near Portland Bill. There have been rumors that the United States may ask British permission to establish a Polaris missile submarine station there.

BRUSSELS (AP) — Police today arrested at least 130 men they said were preparing to attack the main railroad stations in Mons and Charleroi as Belgium's socialist-led strike went into its 21st day.

Premier Gaston Eyskens said 100 men were arrested in Mons and at least 30 in Charleroi as they gathered to attack the stations.

The speedy police action apparently prevented a repetition of the battle at the Liege Railroad Station Friday in which a 31-year-old worker was fatally shot.

He was the second fatality of the strike against Eyskens' proposed austerity program of higher taxes and some cuts in welfare benefits.

As the premier was speaking, police clashed with a group of about 200 led by Communist Sen. Rene Noel in front of the Mons Post Office. The mob threw bottles and stones, breaking windows of the building and neighboring private houses. The police fired their rifles into the air and threw smoke bombs before the rioters scattered. No one was reported injured.

Coogan Released On Bail After Narcotics Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Jackie Coogan is free on bail today, accused with three others of possessing marijuana.

Coogan, bald and 46, won his greatest fame as Charlie Chaplin's 4-year-old co-star with bowl haircut in the silent film, "The Kid."

More recently Coogan has appeared on television.

Sheriff's deputies raided his home in the exclusive Malibu Beach colony Saturday. Officers said they found three partly smoked marijuana cigarettes and three ounces of loose marijuana in the house.

Booked with Coogan were Nona Carver, 40, who described herself as a former exotic dancer; Arthur C. Ringer Jr., 31, dance instructor; and Edward Norris, 45, an actor.

All denied knowledge of any marijuana. They were held several hours at the Malibu sheriff's station, transferred to Los Angeles County jail and released on $2,625 bail each.

Congo Formally Denounces U.N.

Charge It Failed to Lend Support Against Lumumbist Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The Congo government today formally denounced the United Nations, charging it failed to support the Leopoldville government against seizures of power by Lumumbist rebels.

Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko told the United Nations any aid given to "usurpers" such as Moscow-trained Antoine Gizenga is "incompatible with the role of the United Nations."

Gizenga, a partisan of imprisoned former premier Patrice Lumumba, proclaimed himself premier and set up a headquarters at Stanleyville last month.

Bomboko's memorandum was released to the press as reports reached Leopoldville that a force of about 1,500 soldiers had moved from the Stanleyville area into pro-Lumumbist areas of North Katanga, areas claimed to be under the exclusive sovereignty of the separatist premier Moise Tshombe.

A United Nations spokesman said these troops were well-received by villagers in Manono, about 150 miles from the frontier of Oriental province, of which Stanleyville is the capital. But he declined information on how the troops arrived or the actions of U.N. troops in the vicinity.

Fuel Tanks Drop From Jet, Blast Big Craters

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Frightened residents of a Dallas suburb fled their homes Sunday when two large fuel tanks dropped by a Navy jet blasted five-foot craters near two residences.

There were no injuries. A Navy spokesman said the pilot, flying at 30,000 feet, did not release the almost-empty fuel tanks. An investigation has been ordered to determine what caused the malfunctioning of the release mechanism.

"They sounded like artillery shells coming in," said Gil Bryan who lives near where the tanks fell. Several homes were damaged by flying debris.

Bill Creating 63 New Judgeships Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Sunday proposed a bill creating 63 new federal judgeships, including a new appellate judge for Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana, the Seventh Circuit.

Should the bill become law, appointment of the judges would be made by the President. Federal judgeships pay a minimum of $22,000 a year and carry full pay and retirement benefits.

Power Test Between State's Legislative, Executive Branches

Both Ends of Political Scale Weighted by Vote in November

MADISON (AP) — The 1961 powerful highway committee and Legislature, convening at high at 76 the oldest lawmaker in the noon Wednesday, will provide an unprecedented test of the balance of power between Wisconsin's legislative and executive branches of government.

Voters weighed both ends of the political scale equally Nov. 8 when they retained the Senate's 20-13 Republican majority, put the Assembly back under GOP control and awarded Democratic Gov. Gaylord Nelson a second term.

Nelson had a politically unfriendly Senate last term but his party's dominance in the Assembly helped win legislative approval for about half his program. No governor before him has faced a state legislature completely controlled by an opposing party.

Though his party is outgunned in the Legislature, Nelson still holds veto power the Republicans—for lack of a two-thirds majority—cannot upset.

A Statement

That puts at hand all the makings for a legislative stalemate unmatched in Wisconsin annals. But the political division creating the threat also could act as the best deterrent to any such deadlock.

Republicans accused Nelson and a Democratic-controlled Assembly of "footdragging" in the record-long session of 1959. Nelson said the Senate's Republican majority employed "obstructionist" tactics which slowed progress.

Both sides had at least a semblance of a case.

This session the governor should be able to expect fast legislative action on his proposals from a GOP membership free to call the shots in both houses. The Legislature should be able to expect equally swift action from the governor.

Any partisan attempt to tip the balance between the two branches will be detected easily and bring swift reprisals.

Give and Take

To get the legislative machinery off dead center under the circumstances will require some prearranged give and take by the political pros of both houses.

The procedure — it's called even-thing from bipartisanship to horse-trading—would call for the services of such men as:

Sen. Robert Knowles, R - New Richmond, a brother of the lieutenant governor and assistant majority floorleader.

Sen. Frank Panzer, R-Brownsville, who will be the Senate's president pro tem for the seventh consecutive session. He is 70.

Majority Leader

Sen. Robert Knowles, R - New Richmond, a brother of the lieutenant governor and assistant majority floorleader.

Sen. Jess Miller, R - Richland Center, chairman of the Senate's

Sen. Leland McFarland, D - Cudahy, the minority party's caucus chairman and one of its ablest spokesmen.

Sen. William Moser, D - Milwaukee, who succeeded Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier as minority floorleader. He's only 33.

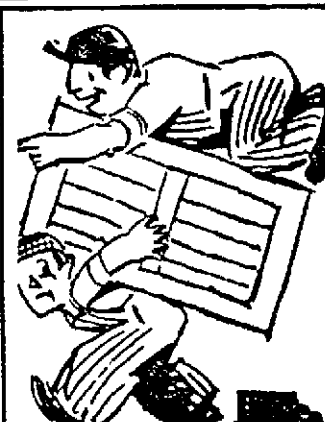

Sen. Lynn Stalbaum, D-Racine, assistant minority floorleader and one of the party's chief spokesmen on finance and taxes.

On the Assembly side Republican direction will come from David Blanchard of Edgerton, the newly-named speaker of the House; Robert D. Haase of Marinette, who succeeds Blanchard as floorleader; and Paul Alfonsi of Minocqua, the assistant floorleader.

Assembly Democrats will look to George Molinaro of Kenosha the former speaker who is expected to be named caucus chairman; Robert Huber of Milwaukee, a prime candidate for minority floorleader; and William Ward of New Richmond, who has been mentioned as Huber's assistant.

23 Jap Fishermen Rescued in Pacific

TOKYO (AP) — Twenty-three Japanese fishermen from a tuna fishing boat which sank Saturday on Roneador Reef in the Solomon Islands have been picked up from life rafts, the Japanese Maritime Safety Agency reported. A spokesman said the rescue ship now is searching for four men missing of the crew of 27.

MY ACHING BACK!!!

Back injuries due to improper lifting alone average 125,000 per year.

Each injury averages:

- Days lost by workers 22
- Man-days of production lost by employer 28
- Millions of man days of vital production are lost annually due to back injuries.

Many back injuries can be prevented by proper methods of lifting heavy weights.

To lift properly and prevent injury, place the weight directly between the knees, bend the knees and not the back, keep the back as perpendicular as possible. If this method is employed in lifting, it will prevent many back injuries.

If you've had a recent back injury it will save you time, money, and misery by consulting your family chiropractor.

Weak Points in Election Laws

The close vote for President of the United States brought many demands for recounts and charges of fraud. Eventually the outcome was decided and the prospects are that the charges all will be forgotten shortly and nothing done about claimed irregularities.

Wisconsin had practically no trouble since it has fairly good election laws. Furthermore, the experts appear to agree that election laws are only as good as the persons who administer them and this may be taken as a compliment by Wisconsin people.

Illinois was a hot point in the dispute over the election outcome and in the charges of vote selling and election stealing. For the past four years the League of Women Voters in Illinois has been studying elections and the state election laws. They have looked into reports by more than 50 authorities, the election codes of 35 states and have supplemented their work with personal experience at the polls and hearings of the Illinois legislature.

One of the authorities called upon in this study was the Brookings Institution which, in a report on elections some 30 years ago, declared that sound administration is most important in bringing about fair elections. However, it said, "No other governmental function is marked by so much irregularity, mismanagement, incompetence and downright fraud."

"It is highly significant that they are administered as a general rule by representatives of the party organizations who have a personal interest in the outcome. The bipartisan tradition in the administration of elections requires thorough examination to determine its present advisability."

While this condition was pointed out more than 30 years ago it still exists and is likely to continue in the future. The fact is that the party organizations are not willing to give up control of the election machinery. However, it would be possible to insure fair elections by providing, as Wisconsin does, that the two major parties shall be in control of each polling place and thus both parties will know what is going on. In Wisconsin this provision is rigidly enforced but in Illinois that has not always been the case.

The Chicago Daily News recently pointed out that the Chicago election commission wasn't effectively bipartisan. Although the board consisted of two Democrats and one Republican nearly all of the regular employees were Democrats. In the precincts, some boards were said to lack Republican judges entirely while in others Democrats served claiming to be Republicans. Where such a setup is possible it is a practical certainty that the election will be handled in the way best suited to the interests of the majority party.

Various recommendations have been made including one calling for the establishment of state commissions to handle elections. This already has been done in nine states and is said to have the advantage of standardizing instructions to the election workers and bringing about uniform practices. Another suggestion has been to simplify the language of the election laws so that election workers and the voters can understand the instructions.

However, most of the irregularities in elections appear to come about through the use of absentee ballots and the granting of assistance to voters. Some states use identical ballots for absentee voters and at the polls this may open the way to fraud. It has been discovered that so-called chain voting becomes possible through the manipulation of absentee ballots. If one absentee ballot identical with those used on election day can be found, the vote manipulator can mark it and give it to a "trusted voter." The "trusted voter" enters the polling place with the ballot. He gets a ballot in the regular way and enters the booth. While there he places the blank ballot in his pocket and leaves the booth with the ballot which has been marked for him. That ballot is dropped in the ballot box. The "voter" then goes out to the manipulator with the unmarked ballot. This is marked for another "trusted voter" who repeats the process. Thus all day long the manipulator can send voters into the booth with marked ballots absolutely certain they will be voted as he wishes and the voter proves this by returning with an unmarked ballot.

Most state laws permit persons who are blind or otherwise physically handicapped to have assistance in a polling place. This provision has been used by unscrupulous manipulators to mark ballots as they want them marked and also to vote machines as they want them voted. In fact this business of giving assistance to voters is about the only way known to get around the machines. There are many persons, including some members of the League of Women Voters, who believe that the law permitting aid to illiterate voters should be repealed. It is recognized as a source of fraud and corruption. This provision has been repealed in many states and in New York ability to read and write is one of the prerequisites of voting.

Most state laws provide for a pre-election purging of the voter lists. This provision is intended to remove the names of persons who have died or changed their addresses. However, it is a part of the registration laws which often is neglected. This neglect permits the introduction of the fraudulent voting of those names. One community in Illinois, with a population of 1,100, carried on its polling list in just one of its two precincts the names of 13 persons who had died and 69 who had moved away. Lack of funds and office personnel were given as the excuses for the incorrect lists.

It must be pretty obvious, however, that the people of any state could have a fair, accurate election if they insisted upon it and were willing to provide the necessary funds. In fact, if machines were required in all precincts and if the rule of help to illiterate voters was repealed we would be a long way toward assuring an honest and accurate election.

Qualifying Auto Drivers

Letters to newspapers lately have been critical of the state laws and regulations covering the qualification of automobile drivers, and especially younger and beginning drivers, for the privileges of the road. Such critics may get some comfort out of the fact that the state motor vehicle department's officers lately also have called for a strengthening of the examination procedures by way of adding to the numbers of examiners and inspectors.

For those who are concerned that this may be another example of bureaucratic expansionism at the expense of the hard-pressed general taxpayer, it is pertinent to note that the caseload appears to justify these requests to some extent and that this is a program that is financed by the drivers themselves through their driver license fees, examination fees, auto registration fees and motor fuel taxes.

There is further reassurance about the quality of the present examination system, moreover, in the recent report on examinations given by the state agency during the last year.

We note from the official record that the department administered the impressive total of 215,000 inside tests or examinations and a correspondingly high total of 140,000 outside or road tests.

More significantly, an average of 20 per cent of all the applicants examined in inside tests, or knowledge examinations, were failed. An average of 42 per cent of all the applicants failed on road tests.

These figures are net. Some of the applicants were not admitted to tests, because the mechanical equipment of their vehicles was obviously deficient, or because of physical disabilities.

We cannot judge from these bare statistics whether there is room for further improvement in the examination procedure. We can only take the testimony of the officials in charge for its literal value, remembering that Chief John Thompson of the state driver control section is a professional of many years of experience and has a record of constructive leadership in this field. But the record of failure percentages is persuasive, at the least. Whatever may be needed in the way of additional staff, or perhaps in the way of more demanding laws on qualifications, this state has moved a considerable way forward from the casual, careless and unsupervised driver examinations we had until half a dozen years ago.

Gov. Nelson Requests Airport Need Review

From The Milwaukee Journal

Gov. Nelson has stepped into the hotly controversial matter of local airport location and improvement in Wisconsin. He has directed David Carley, director of the department of resource development, to initiate a study since "the location of airport facilities is important to the economic development of the state."

The assignment therefore appears logical, though the state aeronautics commission, director and staff have chief responsibility in planing and developing the state's airport system. There may be reason to doubt they have had sufficient will and means to explore fully the effects of airport location on the state's economy.

The federal government provides half of the money for approved airport projects. The state aeronautics commission allots that, plus state aid up to 25 per cent — but usually less — to public airport projects where the local government in-involved will provide the rest of the money.

This ties the hands of the commission. A public airport project can only go ahead if a municipal or county board consents — and appropriates its share. The local board is swayed by constituents who know next to nothing about air traffic, airport operation or effects on the economy.

Local rivalries and politics having nothing to do with airport matters have influenced the outcome. And this is no way to develop an integrated statewide system of airports economically, as the state's needs and development should dictate.

If the study by the department of resource development draws attention to these glaring faults and leads to long overdue remedial action, everyone should be grateful, the state aeronautics commission included.

National Education Policy Must Pick Between Essential, Urgent

From Purpose and Policy in Higher Education, by Douglas M. Knight, president, Lawrence College.

"National policy for higher education will mean very little, no matter how much it costs, unless we understand clearly that our colleges and universities speak not only for us but to us. We go to them for help, for training, for information; we must also see that they are strong enough so that we can go to them for wise counsel.

"This aspect of higher education needs to be understood . . . because it is the easiest thing to lose in a time of alarms and excursions. We will find it far easier in the next few years to build a better guidance system for our missiles than to build a wiser policy for their use. And if the world of higher education has a great responsibility for the first, it has a primary obligation to the second. Any significant planning for our future must recognize the difference between the urgent and the essential. Our national policy for survival must also be broad enough to include in its definitions the survival of the good, the wise, and the humane as well as the clever and the effective . . ."

"Granting that excellence is an operative but valuing word, we in the colleges and universities want to operate well and vigorously. We want the credit of excellence, but we too are victims of clashing definitions. We are often, in fact, as unsure as Socrates' Meno about what we mean by the good; and I suspect that often we are just as eager as Grosse Point or Scarsdale to base our definition on externals. If a noble percentage of our students are at the top of their high school classes, if a great number of them go on to the best graduate schools, if our buildings are bigger and our football teams better, then we assure ourselves that we are concerned about excellence — and furthermore, that we have proved the effectiveness of our concern. We have pursued excellence, and we have finally caught the beast. During these past years, then, we have been the uncritical partners in our society's shift of awareness about excellence. We have accepted without serious question the proposition that real achievement is a matter of outward result . . ."

"Colleges which have had trouble staying alive find it hard to resist adding the clever program, the popular but momentary course, the hopeful magnet rather than the better mousetrap. Institutions which have had trouble enough giving an adequate Bachelor's degree now insist on granting the M. A. and yearn toward the Ph. D. We find ourselves in some way confused and compromised; we are pulled constantly beyond wise growth into disorder, into situations where we can no longer be sure of our purposes, let alone whether we are fulfilling them . . ."

"There is a good deal of encouragement at the moment of the idea that we must meet the shortage of teachers by dividing their functions. There will be a few neophyte scholars, but the rest will busy themselves with the day's work of teaching, and may solace themselves at night with a little second-hand though learned honey.

"To doubt the wisdom of this idea should not encourage us to its opposite — the conviction that there is nothing so good for 20th century scholars as a 19th century graduate education. Between these extremes there ought to be an idea of the scholar-teacher adequate to our time and our needs . . ."

"Those of us in higher education have tended to assume that the issue of the 'loyalty oath' was completely clear cut, and that as a result it imposed no other duty upon us but that of affirming our virtue, taking a stand, and then moving back while the dust settled. In some ways this position was right as well as reasonable; in some other ways it was surprisingly naive — and most naive, oddly enough, right at the point of our educational responsibility. It looks in retrospect as though we were so concerned to establish a position that we failed to ask ourselves the teacher's first questions — whom are we obligated to 'inform,' and what kinds of information are relevant to the various groups which need to be educated? We failed to realize, at least during the first year of our discussion,

Looking Backward

Charleston News Has War Tinge

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Jan. 12, 1861.

The Charleston Secession Convention received a highly important communication from the Commissioners at Washington and immediately went into secret session.

Commander Pettigrew, of castle Pinkney, issued orders against the approach of boats to the wharf, under a heavy penalty. The city and river forts are carefully guarded.

Ladies have tendered their services at the fort.

The City Vigilant Rifles are dispatched to secret service at Morris' Island. The Zouaves and German Rifles have paraded down the harbor. The Palmetto Guards have charge of the arsenal, where the Palmetto flag waves.

Several interior banks agree to take respective portions of the State loan.

Potomac Fever — by Fletcher Knebel

John J. McCloy is our new disarmament chief. This is one field in which a fellow never has to worry about the Russians getting ahead of us.

The bowl games are almost over, except for the Pro Bowl in Los Angeles and the Democratic Gravy Bowl in Washington.

Montana's Mike Mansfield is the senate leader. He'll answer only to the White House—over Lyndon Johnson's private line.

Republican probers brand old New Dealer Tommy Corcoran as one of Washington's "best influence peddlers." It's a cinch no second-rate influence peddler could get that kind of free advertising out of a House committee.

A poll quiz of New York college students turns up seven scholars who didn't know the name of the U. S. President. You'd think they'd at least keep up with the golf news.

Congress opens with the traditional hassle over filibusters. We're a people who believe in priorities and the east-west conflict will just have to wait its turn until we settle this north-south thing.

Governor's Speech Recognizes Reality

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Gov. Nelson's unusual inaugural address was the concession to reality of a man who has, reflected long on the November election returns and has concluded that discretion is sometimes a necessary ingredient of liberal valor.

It can be guessed that the Democratic leader of the state was subject to some conflicting pressure and advice as he wondered what to say in his unusual situation — the first second term Democratic governor to be elected head of the state in modern times, given a legislature that is strongly Republican in a state which shows unmistakable signs of returning to its historic Republican moorings.

He could have come out like a pugilistic scrapper, made some headlines, provided some footnotes for the historians, and invited instant retaliation from a legislature that is led by some seasoned in-fighters.

He could have been humbly conciliatory, which would have annoyed some of the powerful groups within his own following, and especially at a time when those groups see in the country as a whole a renaissance of the liberal power with the installation of the new national Kennedy regime.

THE MIDDLE ROAD

He did neither. He said as plainly as a self-respecting politician can say it that he had his "druthers," he would get along with the legislature. In line with that invitation, he carefully avoided mention of some of the specific points in his first term program which fell as casualties to the intransigent 1959 Republican state senate. He then resorted to that wonderfully elastic, catch-all phrase, "the progressive tradition."

The "progressive tradition" in the speech habits of politicians is like maternity and an early spring — one of the eternal crutches of the man who must make a speech, but doesn't want to say too much.

There is something about the word that anyone can stand on it. Indeed, there was very little in the Democratic governor's entire address as he took his second oath that any conceivable Republican alternative who might have stood at the same lectern could not have said with equal grace.

No doubt that was the reason why reporters as they solicited that in identifying our own attitudes and convictions we had taken only the first small step toward solving our problem . . .

comments from leading Republicans after the speech found relatively little in the way of quotable remarks.

PRAGMATIC

The governor called for common sense and the eschewing of partisan maneuver for pure partisan interest. Any Republican would have said that, had he faced a term with an intent, ambitious majority of legislative Democrats in control.

There were some provocative phrases and sentences in the governor's generally graceful speech, nevertheless. He said the rulers of the state government must be "pragmatic rather than dogmatic."

The wish poses interesting possibilities. For the essence of the partisan competition is dogma. Most of the big issues in contemporary state politics would not exist, save for the "dogmatic" positions of the political leaders and pressure groups, and notably, the liberals.

It is "dogma" that is the principal barrier to the movement for a broadening of the state tax base, which Nelson knows is inevitable, but which liberal Democrats will fight, with all the resources at their command. It was "dogma" that got Nelson into some of the chief wrangles with the Republicans last year, as in his farm marketing bill that proposed economic arrangements that would be denounced as conspiracy if attempted by any other economic group. It is "dogma" that is involved in much of the argument about labor legislation, to name another vital field of legislative controversy.

Probe Should Take in More Than Boxing

From The Hartford Courant

Kefauver investigations always make good reading and the study of racketeering in the fight industry is no exception. The senator has now urged that a federal commission be appointed to curb this phase of racketeering. This is all right so far as it goes, but it is only one nibble at the edge of a much larger problem. Why a commission to act on what is admittedly only a small fragment of a multi-billion dollar rackets industry? Nearly everyone knows that the fight industry represents only a tiny segment of the larger gambling empire that extends from coast to coast.

There are ugly rumors that this wealthy group of hoodlums is so rich and powerful that they have many politicians indebted to them for large campaign contributions. The seeming disinclination of many men in public life to tackle this corrosive national evil lends credibility to the theory. Mr. Kefauver would do well to raise his sights to the larger problem.

Annexation Helps Orderly Development

From The Wisconsin Municipality

Texas' liberal annexation law has contributed greatly to orderly urban development during the rapid-growth period since World War II, a planning consultant said. In the view of one representative of a major bond firm, cities could not maintain high credit ratings without authority to expand.

"If there is not room for expansion stagnation sets in, and with it an impairment of credit and dilution of the city's ability to finance improvements," said Frank Metternich of the First Southwest Corporation, Dallas.

$100,000 Damage In New London Fire

through the roof of the Rieckmann store.

Also damaged was the east wall of Emil's Bar, the building west of Pahl's.

The fire wall and automatic fire door tripped by the heat prevented the fire from spreading into the 10-lane alleys which connects to the north end of the Pahl building.

Ray V. Pahl, owner of the combination newsstand and bowling alleys, reported that his damage may reach $30,000. A contractor estimated the damage could reach $100,000, including all three buildings and their contents.

Rieckmann reported his stock is valued at $30,000. All of the footwear was subjected to intense smoke damage and some water damage.

The east wall of Emil's Bar, owned by Emil Dalum, probably will have to be replaced, according to Chief Feurig.

Commends Firemen

Feurig said he believed the fire started in the false ceiling in the furnace room at Pahl's. He said the entire ceiling was blazing when he arrived. He commended the New London and Hortonville firemen for keeping the fire confined.

The call was received about 7:15 p.m. Sunday and the Hortonville department was called on for assistance by 7:30 when the fire roared out of control.

About 40 firemen and four pumper trucks were pressed into service. Freezing temperatures added to the hazard as ladders and roofs of the buildings became coated with ice.

Saves Papers

Chief Feurig and Robert Besaw, a member of the New London department, wore air masks to take the cash registers and other important papers from Rieckmann's store.

Dalum made two unsuccessful attempts to enter his tavern before finally succeeding in reaching his cash register in the smoke filled building.

Dwight Spaulding, tenant in the apartment above the Rieckmann store, was forced to find temporary quarters when his rooms were damaged by water and smoke.

Lose Bowling Gear

The section of the Pahl building destroyed included the newsstand, soda fountain, lunch counter, kitchen, furnace room, beer bar and locker rooms. Many bowlers lost bowling balls and shoes in the locker room.

Christmas street decorations and the large Nativity scene owned by the New London Junior Chamber of Commerce were stored above the Pahl establishment. Don Dent of the Jaycees reported the Nativity scene was insured for $700 and the street decorations, also lost in the blaze, were valued at over $1,000 but were not insured.

Employees at the alleys saved the cash registers and the juke box.

The fire cut a telephone cable containing more than 200 pairs of wires. About 500 patrons were without service, Wisconsin Bell Telephone Co. officials reported this morning.

Cable men from Appleton started repairing the cable at 10 p.m. and the service was restored this morning. Another cable, about three feet higher, was not damaged.

New London businessmen provided coffee and lunch for the firemen.

Tribute to Lee

Gen. Robert E. Lee's efforts to heal the wounds of war were praised at ceremonies at the Confederate leader's tomb in Lexington, Va.

Francis P. Gaines, former Washington and Lee University president, said that "the dignity of Gen. Lee, his tireless energy in behalf of tomorrow, and his faith in the future of this reunited country were the greatest stabilizing elements in the pathetic post-war years."

Grant's grandson hailed Lee as "a great and knightly American soldier and citizen" in a telegram from New York, and Gaines called the 18th president "a magnanimous leader."

Supply Ship Attacked

The Civil War actually started April 12, 1861, when Confederate troops shelled Fort Sumter in the harbor of Charleston, S.C.

But President Eisenhower chose the so-called "Star of the West" incident to kick off the celebration. The "Star of the West" was a Union supply ship en route to Fort Sumter when rebel forces in the harbor fired on it, on Jan. 8, 1861, forcing it to turn around and head home.

Cadets of The Citadel re-enact the firing in Charleston today, using five 24-pound cannons similar to those used a century ago. The USS Orleans Parish, a Navy minelayer support ship, has been fitted out with masts, sails and paddlewheels for the re-enactment.

Members of the First Maryland Artillery, wearing Confederate uniforms, staged the same incident Sunday when they fired 17 rounds from a reproduction Civil War cannon at Annapolis, Md., docks. Earlier, a memorial service was held in the U.S. Naval Academy chapel.

Lad Rescued From Mine Shaft After Long Stay

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP)—Larry Daack, 15-year-old Reno youth, was recovering at home today from the effects of the closest brush with death he has had.

He was rescued Saturday night from a shaft over the Suto Tunnel in Virginia City's Comstock Lode country.

Larry expressed his gratitude from his hospital bed in Reno.

"All those guys did a wonderful job," he said. "I don't know how to tell them thanks."

Hurt Back

Larry is suffering from a possible fracture in his back and said he will need a cast.

"The back's bothering me a little bit but I feel a lot better than I did down that hole," he said.

The youth spent nearly 11 hours crouched 50 feet below the earth's surface in the narrow, crumbling mine shaft. Rescuers said the vertical air shaft originally connected with the Suto tunnel some 1,400 feet below the surface, but a recent cave-in sealed it at 50 feet.

Workers said the rubble which plugged the hole could have dropped at any moment. The only support was aging timbers.

Band played "America the Beautiful" while other wreaths were placed at the tomb in behalf of the nation, the state of New York, the city and the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, an organization of descendants of Union army officers.

Tribute to Lee

Gen. Robert E. Lee's efforts to heal the wounds of war were praised at ceremonies at the Confederate leader's tomb in Lexington, Va.

Francis P. Gaines, former Washington and Lee University president, said that "the dignity of Gen. Lee, his tireless energy in behalf of tomorrow, and his faith in the future of this reunited country were the greatest stabilizing elements in the pathetic post-war years."

Grant's grandson hailed Lee as "a great and knightly American soldier and citizen" in a telegram from New York, and Gaines called the 18th president "a magnanimous leader."

Supply Ship Attacked

The Civil War actually started April 12, 1861, when Confederate troops shelled Fort Sumter in the harbor of Charleston, S.C.

But President Eisenhower chose the so-called "Star of the West" incident to kick off the celebration. The "Star of the West" was a Union supply ship en route to Fort Sumter when rebel forces in the harbor fired on it, on Jan. 8, 1861, forcing it to turn around and head home.

Cadets of The Citadel re-enact the firing in Charleston today, using five 24-pound cannons similar to those used a century ago. The USS Orleans Parish, a Navy minelayer support ship, has been fitted out with masts, sails and paddlewheels for the re-enactment.

Members of the First Maryland Artillery, wearing Confederate uniforms, staged the same incident Sunday when they fired 17 rounds from a reproduction Civil War cannon at Annapolis, Md., docks. Earlier, a memorial service was held in the U.S. Naval Academy chapel.

"that the AMA has publicly stated that it will devote all its resources to block any attempts by this conference to endorse medical insurance for the aged tied to Social Security."

McNamara has introduced a bill to carry out the Social Security plan for medical care.

McNamara said, "It is unfortunate that the AMA continues to devote such massive effort to promotion of its 19th century philosophy rather than concentrating on the needs of tomorrow."

"I hope that the delegates here will not allow themselves to be hustled or stampeded into action not in keeping with the purpose of the conference."

An AMA spokesman Sunday backed the federal-state medical care plan for the aged passed by Congress last year and signed by President Eisenhower. Under it, needy persons over 65 are to get medical aid with costs shared by the federal and state governments. Democrats have attacked it as inadequate.

Dr. J. Lafe Ludwig of Los Angeles, chairman of the AMA Council on Medical Services, told a group of doctor delegates: "It would be a national tragedy — unfair to old and young alike — if we shelved this law for the so-called Social Security approach which would mean medicine controlled and administered by the federal government."

ed for 147. He said he will cut "a good many millions" out of the University of Wisconsin and other higher education budget requests because of the squeeze in state finances.

On the question of highway law enforcement the governor said he is satisfied from the experience of state and county police that there is a relation between highway safety and the intensity of patrolling.

He argued also that as new highways are completed, more police will be required to maintain the same intensity of enforcement effort. The legislature probably ought to consider also a stiffening of the penalties for highway violations, he said as he was questioned on the recent proposal of Republican Lt. Gov. Warren P. Knowles urging a review of highway safety programs.

Plan New Conference Kennedy, Eisenhower Likely to Meet Jan. 19

Pusey, and I'll protect your interests."

That touched off another round of cheers.

Before leaving Boston, across the Charles River, the president-elect also announced appointment of Newton N. Minow of Chicago, a law partner of Adlai E. Stevenson, to the chairmanship of the Federal Communications Commission.

Kennedy already has had one conference, last Dec. 6, with Eisenhower. The president-elect had been most helpful and that he might accept Eisenhower's invitation to come to the White House again before inauguration day.

Kennedy reportedly wants to discuss specific matters with the outgoing President. But he also is said to feel that a second conference on the eve of the new administration taking over would be a demonstration to the world of American unity.

Expansion and more vigorous direction of the existing program of aid for foreign scholars—a program of educational and cultural assistance to such students—was the second step recommended to the Kennedy within 24 hours for improvement of international relations.

The other step would create an experimental peace corps of talented young Americans to serve two years overseas in helping new and underdeveloped countries, build "the institutions essential to self confidence and effective nationhood."

During the presidential campaign Kennedy proposed exemption from the military draft for some of the male members of such a corps. This was criticized by his Republican opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, as an invitation to draft dodging.

A Kennedy-appointed study committee Sunday night recommended establishment of the peace corps, or international youth service, but urged against any exemption from selective service based as postponements granted to students taking graduate training in this country.

That study group was headed by Dr. Max Millikan, director of the Center for International Studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The other study on aid for foreign scholars, made public today, was made for the president-elect by Prof. James C. Davis of the University of Michigan.

other rations "to Cuban men and women who are valiantly entrenched in their position to await the Yankee invaders."

Committee members began canvassing shops, factories and government offices throughout Havana to collect food. The committee also appealed to all housewives who have been given homes under the urban reform program, to help feed the citizen soldiers.

These developments indicated that arrangements to keep the workers' militia fed while on duty had broken down. A militiaman at a gun post in Havana said he had received only bread and sardines "and I would like something more substantial."

Build Military Power

Kennedy Intent on Wrestling Cold War Initiative From Reds

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy intends to build up United States military power and devise new strategy to wrest the cold war initiative from Russia, in his first months in office.

Central to John F. Kennedy's election campaign was a promise to provide dynamic leadership for the United States in a complex world. How is this promise likely to be applied to U. S. foreign policy. In the first of a five-part series on the plans and problems of the administration, a seasoned diplomatic reporter outlines the direction Kennedy is likely to take on major foreign issues facing the country as he prepares to take office.

Until he has these projects well advanced, Kennedy and Secretary of State-designate Dean Rusk hope to postpone pressures for a summit conference with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Early summit meetings with allied leaders appear inescapable; both Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer anxiously desire to talk with the new chief executive.

Even a meeting with Khrushchev in the first six months may not be avoidable because the Soviet leader can set off a new Berlin crisis any time he wishes.

Global Struggle
New action promised by Kennedy in the global struggle with Communism ranges from increasing aid for Latin America, Africa and Asia to rebuilding the North Atlantic Alliance, opening new channels of contact with Red China, and developing a "new approach" to the Soviet Union.

In connection with the Soviets, Kennedy said during the campaign that one thing Red leaders understand is power, and that his first concern as president would be to enhance America's armed strength in both nuclear and conventional weapons.

Kennedy's broad commitment on taking office Jan. 20 is to "get America moving again" and to restore its "prestige." He says determinations on how best to work toward these goals is the overriding task of the new administration.

That will require long-range planning, too. One of Kennedy's first decisions must be on the division of his time between the grand design of his foreign policy and the challenges and crises he must handle from day-to-day.

Critical Problems
Already, in fact, critical problems are piling up for speedy action. Foremost among these are:
1. Negotiations with Russia on a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests. Kennedy is on record as favoring "one more" big attempt to reach agreement. But as president he will be subjected to very heavy pressures from the Atomic Energy Commission and defense department to end the 26-month-old moratorium on U.S. weapons testing and resume underground explosions quickly.

2. The dollar crisis. Kennedy is reported convinced that he must take steps promptly to strengthen the American dollar as an international currency, which means cutting this country's loss of gold and dollars. Measures taken by the Eisenhower administration should become effective this year, but other action will be required to control the $4 billion annual balance of payments deficit.

3. The crisis in Laos. State department experts consider the conflict between pro-Western and pro-Communist forces in the little Southeast Asian kingdom capable of expansion into a larger war involving Western forces and the Chinese Communists.

Official Alarm
4. The Cuban crisis. Behind the scenes there is more official alarm than has appeared publicly about the danger and damage to the U.S. world position from the buildup of Communist influence in Cuba. President Eisenhower applied economic sanctions and severed diplomatic relations. Kennedy will be urged to use of variety of political and economic measures against the Castro regime.

5. The Berlin dispute. This was the immediate cause of the abortive 1960 summit at Paris, and could develop into a new crisis at any time. U.S. officials believe, however, that Khrushchev will stay his hand until Kennedy has an opportunity to take over the reins in Washington. Khrushchev evidently does want to meet the youthful new American leader, and undoubtedly knows that he would frustrate his own purpose if he mistimed his Berlin moves. However, it is also true that an extremely serious Berlin situation might force Kennedy to move toward a summit conference just as Eisenhower felt forced to do.

Kennedy's chief concern about rushing into meetings with Western leaders is that he needs time to get his cabinet and other top advisers organized, and to make an initial policy review. Apart from the Adenauer and Macmillan desires to meet him, it has been suggested that a NATO meeting at Oslo, Norway, in May should be converted into a Western summit session. Otherwise, it will be a foreign ministers meeting. Rusk also must get ready for U.S. representation in scheduled CENTO (Middle East) SEATO (Southeast Asia) and Inter-American Alliance meeting within the first six months of this year.

NATO Meeting
The NATO meeting will be of great importance. U.S. allies expect to find out there whether Kennedy will go forward with a plan advanced by the Eisenhower administration for giving NATO its own, seaborne nuclear rocket force. While neither Kennedy nor any spokesman is known to have made any actual commitment, he is expected to support the preliminary position taken by the outgoing administration.

How Kennedy handles each of these meetings and deals initially with each of the critical problems will have a decisive influence on the world's reaction to his leadership ability. One of the most striking facts about world reaction to Kennedy's election has been the evidence in editorial comment in foreign capitals that his promise to provide dynamic leadership for the United States and the free world has been widely accepted. Now, the leaders and the peoples in scores of countries are waiting for him to show what he can do.

Inside Labor

More Anti-Red Action Advocated for Africa

BY VICTOR RIESEL

Once I got out of the elephant grass in Lumumba's Oriental Province and drove past the cobra country in the Kingdom of Toro, I was among friends in Kampala, Uganda. There "our side" has thrown in a few chips to set up a sleepy little train labor leaders — the theory being that in Africa every union president is a potential prime minister.

But the "people's" Sino-Soviet bloc strategists have gone in for buying up kings and prime ministers in power, figuring that one in the hand is worth several in the bush country. Apparently they've done better than we think.

There is the story behind the emergency Jan. 5 session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, labor's high command.

To Discuss Africa
When, on Dec. 22, national labor chief George Meany called the parley, insiders rushed to their phones to contact John Kennedy's headquarters. Would the president-elect be there to hear what the labor leaders wanted? He would not. The session, said Meany to all his aides, was to discuss Africa. If the union economists wanted to throw up a legislative program, the 29-man high council would simply pass a resolution.

Meany believes that most European unions have gone soft in their fight on the Soviets. He had talked with the AFL-CIO's roving representative, Irving Brown, late in November, when both were in Brussels before it was riot-torn by Socialist unions. Brown now is in the Cameroons — one of the few white men trusted by African leaders.

There, for example, the Sino-Soviet bloc was gun running for the Communist underground section of the Union des Populations du Cameroons, a guerilla terrorist force.

Reds Take Ghana
Then there is Ghana where as late as July, 1956, there was no Communist party.

There were a few Communists inside the Ghana unions, but there was no infiltration in the Convention Peoples Party (a Socialist Party). Now Ghana's Prime Minister, who learned his tactics in an American union, has placed his country inside the Sino-Soviet bloc.

In Morocco, where a King reigns, anti-Communist labor men have been jailed and slugged by the political police of Crown Prince and Vice-Premier Moulay Hassan. The royal pitch now is for the Soviets.

A grim report issued Nov. 14 by the well-informed Vatican mis-ionary agency, Fides, denounced the dangers in the Chinese penetration in Africa. Fides said that the continent had become a "theatre of operation for Communist China."

"There are 600 Chinese in Morocco, 300 in Damascus and 4,000 employed in the rice paddies of Guinea (whose president, Sekou Toure, is also a labor leader). Furthermore, a large Chinese team specializing in Communist propaganda is established in Yemen with Africa as its objective. As early as 1952, the Peking government announced that the liberation of Africa would be the task of the Chinese People's Republic."

Everywhere in former French and Belgian Western and Equatorial Africa, there are cadres of special Soviet organizers. They were planted there long ago, by the French and Belgian Communist parties. Their "underground" headquarters are in Brazzaville across the muddy Congo from Leopoldville. Now George Meany believes the deadline is here for swift action and wants U.S. labor "to go it alone in Africa" without waiting for the European Socialists.

Three Attitudes
Inside American labor there are three attitudes — Meany's "to hell with the soft crowd," some old CIO leaders who want to and have been working closely with the European Socialist unions, and a group which just isn't thinking much about anything south of Miami Beach and east of the Atlantic City boardwalk.

Too bad there's slumber and a split. At stake is a continent not only laden with 220 million people but with enough gold and diamonds and uranium to upset the value of everything we have at Fort Knox and much of what we're doing at Cape Canaveral.

Ask UW Students To Support Budget

Elvehjem Tells Graduates State Must Act or Refuse Admittance

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — University of Wisconsin students and new graduates are being asked by the University administration to become missionaries for the school's budget campaign.

The university's extraordinary effort to put punch into its appropriations drive in the state capitol this winter was disclosed during the weekend when UW President C. A. Elvehjem appealed directly to a mid-year convocation of university graduates to appeal to the new legislature and to Gov. Gaylord Nelson for enactment of the school's greatly boosted budget request.

Gov. Nelson, who sat on the platform while the university head spoke and referred directly to his own skepticism about the university's financial requests, made no comment when he spoke to the graduates. He brought a prepared text and did not depart from it.

State Must Sacrifice
Elvehjem acknowledged that his choice of speech material was unusual as he asked new graduates to show their gratitude to the school by aiding its political problems, but he said the appeal is justified by historical necessity.

He said that unless the university is permitted to expand now, it ultimately will be forced to turn students from its doors. The state must make a sacrifice in tax contributions to the university now, in the interest of a long-range investment, he said. Elvehjem also dismissed what he said have been suggested alternatives to higher university appropriations, including stricter admissions, and barriers against non-residents.

Elvehjem said also that the proposals for all-year teaching are impracticable, since with its summer school programs the school is operating at virtually year-around capacity now.

He claimed that the percentage of the Wisconsin tax dollar spent for higher education has not been increased in 20 years, and that one day soon one half of all the graduates of Wisconsin high schools will be demanding higher education. The ratio is now about one third, which is about double the ration of a quarter of a century ago.

Lawrence Says Solution for Wage-Price Problem Vital

Free Market, Not Government, Source Of Recession Cure

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON — What shall one think of a 9,000-word report to President-elect Kennedy by a special task force studying the current economic situation that doesn't throw any light on the basic causes of the current recession?

What shall be Lawrence said of a report which recommends that the federal government increase the amount of personal income available to citizens through temporary tax reductions when the American people today continue to save a large part of their disposable income anyhow instead of spending all of it?

What encouragement can there be for a formula to solve the nation's economic ills when today—as in the 1930's—there is such conspicuous indifference to the problems of the heavy-goods industries?

Tax on Depreciation
Not a single sentence in the report issued by Professor Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology discusses the all-important subject of tax allowances on depreciation which, if adjusted on a replacement-value basis, would do so much to renovate and modernize America's plants and create millions of new jobs.

Toward the end of the report is a rather significant confession that a solution for the wage-price spiral is really vital. The report says:

"It is important though to realize that there are some problems that fiscal and monetary policy cannot themselves come to grips with. Thus, if there is indeed a tendency for prices and wages to rise long before we reach high employment, neither monetary nor fiscal policy can be used to the degree necessary to promote desired growth."

Need New Approaches
"What then may be needed are new approaches to the problem of productivity, wages and price formation. Will it not be possible to bring government influence to bear on this vital matter without invoking direct controls on wages and prices? Neither labor, nor management, nor the consumer can gain from an increase in price tags. Just as we pioneered in the 1920's in creating potent monetary mechanisms and in the 1930's in forging the tools of effective fiscal policy, so may it be necessary in the 1960's to meet head-on the problem of a price creep. This is a challenge to mix economies all over the free world and is not to be met by government alone."

High-sounding statements like the above are often heard, but nothing concrete is ever done about the wage-price problem. Government controls could only worsen the situation and bring on a controlled economy.

What is needed is some "task force" to get at the reasons why big labor union monopolies are as shortsighted as the steel union was in 1939 in forcing a strike and increased wage benefits at a time when the workers were getting very high incomes and when the economy, to use Prof. Samuelson's phrase, was "tired and sluggish."

Must Tackle Problem
There's one lesson which has yet to be learned by the theorists. It's that a "planned economy" will not overcome the hard facts of a free market and that, if America refuses to tackle her wage-price problem, none of the remedial measures being suggested in the Samuelson report will help this country out of its recession.

When the American people finally demand "pitiless publicity" and a thoroughgoing exposure of the misuse of power by big labor unions there will begin to be a clue to what wrecked the American economy in 1959 and 1960 and what set off the chain reaction which is now increasing the unemployment figure.

For until some stability in prices can be achieved and plants can be modernized on an efficient basis to permit cost reduction and a downward revision of prices, there isn't much hope for a cure to the recurring recessions in America. Of what good are low mortgage rates and easy installment terms if the house costs too much?

Pusey 'Blames' Kennedy for Faculty Turnover

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University, former president of Lawrence College, suggested good naturedly today that President-elect John F. Kennedy is responsible for increasing faculty turnover.

Kennedy has called upon a number of Harvard men to take posts in his administration.

In his annual report to the board of overseers, of which Kennedy is a member, Pusey said Harvard's faculty now exceeds 4,600.

"Of these," he said, "approximately 1,500 are teaching fellows and research assistants, and there is, of course, a fairly constant turnover in this group, augmented by losses and gains in other ranks."

"This natural process has perhaps recently had a bit more assistance from Washington than we might selfishly like."

"But at the same time we can only admire the taste which our colleague, the President-elect, has shown in his choice of our officers. Actually we are both pleased and proud if Harvard's loss can make easier for Mr. Kennedy the incredibly difficult task to which he has been called."

State Groups to Get Art in Will

Businessman Has Plans to Make State Leading Art Center

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A Milwaukee businessman has announced plans to leave the major part of his $4 million art collection to public institutions in Wisconsin.

Marc B. Rojzman, 43, former president of the J. I. Case Co. of Racine, said in a statement that he had bequeathed the major part of his collection to the public in a will drawn in 1957.

"In the meantime, I also have some definite plans in mind that could make Wisconsin one of the leading art centers of the country," Rojzman said.

Tentative Plans
These plans, he said, are in a tentative stage but could include art educational programs, gifts of money to various institutions for art purposes and loans to public exhibits from his extensive private collection of "old masters."

On Friday, the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents accepted Rojzman's gift of four 16th and 17th Century paintings, valued at $35,000.

On Saturday, he also announced a gift of four works, valued at $30,000, to Marquette University. Rojzman has opened his own investment banking firm in New York City, but will maintain the family home in Milwaukee.

Nelson Asks Halt On Oshkosh Airport

Governor Wants Aeronautics Commission to Hold Action Until Study Is Completed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Nelson today asked for the postponement of construction contracts for the improvement of the Winnebago County airport, pending completion of a study by one of his assistants on the proper location of airport services in the industrial Fox River Valley.

(Nelson's request follows that made Friday by State Sen. William Draheim, who also asked the commission to hold up any action on the bids until the governor's study is completed. Draheim also asked the Winnebago county board, through its airport committee, to hold up any action.)

The governor in a letter asked the state aeronautics commission to postpone awarding contracts for approved improvements of the county facility. The first bids are scheduled to be opened next Monday, Jan. 16.

Nelson directed his request, which is probably the equivalent of an order, to the chairman and director of the state aviation agency, Dr. L. O. Simenstad, Oshkosh, and Dr. K. Jordan.

The governor recalled that a

Tipsy Driver Fined $150

Man Uninjured As Car Leaves Road, Rolls Over

Donald A. Schroeder, 26, 215 Ceape Ave., Oshkosh, pleaded guilty of drunken driving and was fined $150 by Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane today.

He was arrested by Winnebago County Police after his car left County Trunk A south of Winnebago in the town of Oshkosh at 7:09 p.m. Saturday and rolled over several times.

He told police he was going south on A when he was forced off the road by an oncoming car. He went off the road on the west side and traveled 465, traveled diagonally across the highway for 195 feet before going off on the east side and went another 114 before stopping.

Schroeder was not hospitalized. He tested .19 on the breathalyzer. A test of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication. Schroeder will lose his driving privileges for one year.

3-Way Race for 11th Ward Council Seat Is Indicated

A three-way race for Kenneth Priebe's seat on the City Council and a two-way contest for the 11th ward supervisor's post were indicated as two candidates took out nomination papers today.

Taking out papers for the 11th ward alderman's post was Joseph F. Schink, 826 E. Maple St. He is a maintenance worker at St. Elizabeth Hospital and has no political experience.

Charles Smith, 430 E. Fremont St., has filed for the post and Albert G. Gerhardt, 1221 E. Fremont St., has taken out papers.

Seeking to oppose incumbent Alois Fischer, 1713 E. Glendale St., on the county board is Harold A. Schroeder, 1207 E. Woodland Ave. A mill worker for Kimberly-Clark Corp., he has no political experience.

They had a 14-hour seminar with three engineers from Ray-O-Vac and were the first high school group to tour the Ray-O-Vac plant. The group also toured Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation facilities.

Ag-Mg is an attempt to build a new kind of electric battery for use in high school science classes.

Dam Approved By PSC Over Objections

Structure to Go On Squaw Creek in Marinette County

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Over the objections of most of the sportsmen's clubs in the vicinity and some sportsmen acting as individuals, the Public Service Commission has granted a permit for the reconstruction of a dam on Squaw Creek near Amberg in Marinette County.

The original permit was granted several years ago to O. L. Krughoff, when the state officials found that the stream was not navigable and that the obstruction would therefore be legal. Krughoff is now an officer of the Oak View Improvement Co. which proposes to rebuild the structure to raise water levels on the stream.

Also Opposes Dam
The Conservation Department also opposed the application, through testimony of Milton Burdick, district fish manager at Marinette.

The Conservation Department has designated the stream as trout water. It flows in a generally southerly direction through a marsh area, and crosses the south line of the Town of Amberg at a town road. It joins the Menominee River.

Not Navigable
The Northeast Wisconsin Conservation Council asked the regulatory agency a year and a half ago for a new determination of the navigability of the stream. Before the decision the dam was washed out in the spring of 1960. The commission found that the creek at the time of spring breakups could probably be navigated by floating downstream with a small boat if tree obstructions were removed, but above the dam at ordinary flow the water could not be navigated continuously by the smallest of watercraft, the commission decision said. It added that there had been no known navigable use of the stream before the Krughoff dam was built in 1958.

Jordan: 'No Comment'
Jordan today declined comment on the governor's request but disclosed that he has asked Atty. Gen. John W. Reynolds for advice on the legal possibility of postponing the contract.

He said the state aeronautics commission will meet here Friday in regular session, but that if the legal opinion is not available then he may arrange a special meeting of the board to consider the governor's proposal.

Jordan said he has already discussed the matter informally with state lawyers but that he wants a written memorandum.

Dr. William Milne, Widely Known State Educator, Succumbs

PHILLIPS (AP) — Dr. William Milne, 86, a widely known Wisconsin educator for 55 years, died Saturday night at his home.

Milne was chairman of the Central School District Board here at the time of his death. He formerly was principal of Merrill High School, superintendent of schools at Merrill and principal of the old Price County Normal School. He held a doctorate from the University of Wisconsin.

Milne was honored in 1954 by the Wisconsin School Administrators Association and in 1958 won a citation for educational work from the Wisconsin Association of School Boards. He had served as president of the latter group and was a director at the time of his death.

Tax Committee Opposes Abolishing Personal Levies

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Gaylord Nelson said today his opposition to outright abolition of the personal property tax is in accord with what has become a majority of opinion of his Citizens' Committee on Tax Revision.

Nelson made the statement at a news conference, and Howard Koop, his financial aide, quickly explained that a recent vote switch on proposed repeal of the personal property levy accounted for the change.

The 19-member committee declared its work concluded Dec. 17. The door was left open to minority reports, but there was no mention of later vote changes on specific issues.

Koop identified Edwin Larkin of Eau Claire as the committee member who switched his ballot to void by a vote of 10-9 the group's original recommendation that personal property taxes which now yield about $55 million a year be revoked.

The committee suggested the money be replaced by enactment of higher income taxes, a sales tax, or a combination of the two. Nelson originally stated his position on personal property taxes in a Milwaukee television show Friday. He said the tax "as bad as it is, is not as bad as all other tax problems combined."

Today he added that he did not consider personal property tax inequities one of the "crucial problems" in the state's present revenue structure.

The governor said he favored reducing personal levies through adoption of a constitutional amendment which would allow the Legislature to set a lower rate on that source of state revenue.

The constitution now calls for uniform taxation of personal and real property. Nelson indicated he saw grounds for reducing personal property levies about 25 per cent.

Defense Officials, Ike at Luncheon
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower lunches at the Pentagon today with retiring Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. and other top defense officials.

Gates submitted his resignation over the weekend, effective Jan. 20, the day President-elect John F. Kennedy is inaugurated. Eisenhower told Gates he is convinced "the United States has a military strength second to none."

For Eisenhower, a former five star general, today's visit will probably be his last official call at the Pentagon as commander in chief and president.

Gates, in a review of the defense program accompanying his resignation, said the country's striking power is many times greater than in 1953, when he first joined the defense department as under secretary of the navy.

Board Faces Vote On New Airport

Asked to Follow Fisher Idea For Abandoning Present Port

Outagamie County's 55 supervisors will be asked Tuesday to back a new county airport in an area south of U.S. 10 and east of U.S. 45, some five miles west of Appleton. The present airport on Ballard Road would be abandoned.

'Go It Alone'
A resolution from the board's airport committee will ask supervisors to endorse a new airport, citing Winnebago County's refusal to consider a joint effort west of Neenah. The resolution also gives the committee power to gather figures on land needed and approximate costs.

Thus, the Outagamie County board will face the question of "going it alone" on a new airport, since the Winnebago board refused to even discuss a joint effort.

However, the joint airport idea may not be entirely dead, since both Gov. Nelson and State Sen. William Draheim have asked for no action on Winnebago's planned improvements at Oshkosh.

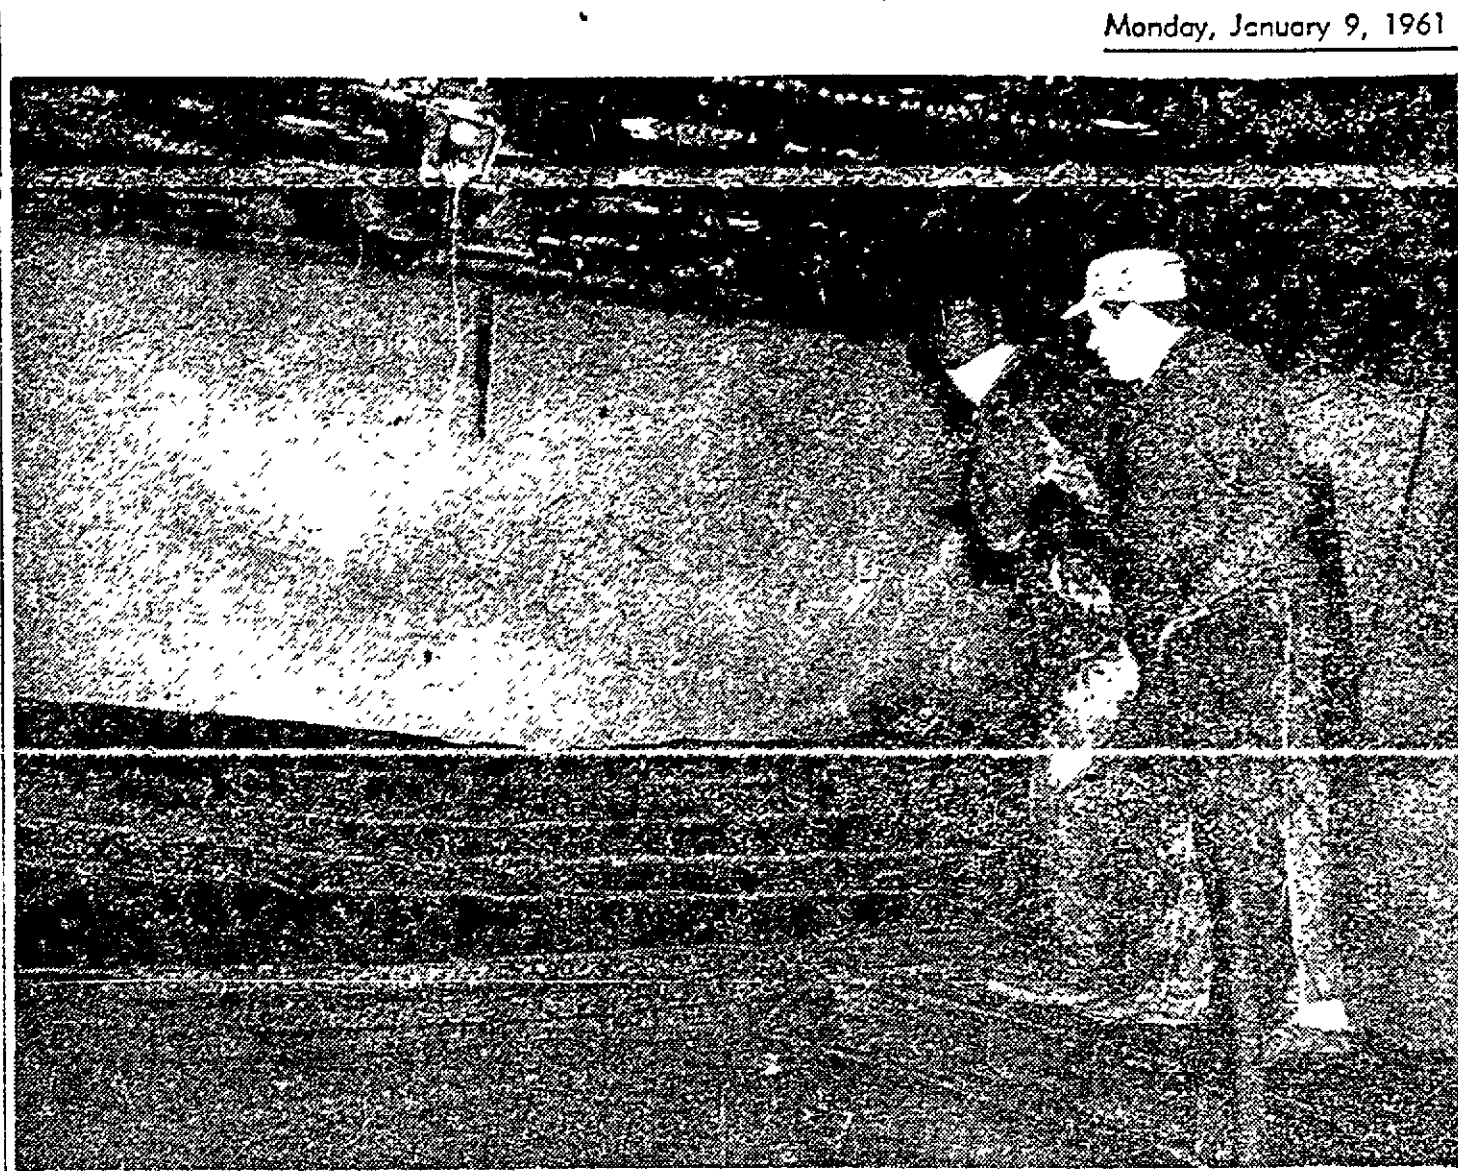

The current activity on the airport question for the Fox Cities and Oshkosh began when the Outagamie County board had a survey made by Leigh Fisher and Associates, a San Francisco airport consulting firm which has a national reputation and which has worked on Milwaukee's Mitchell Field.

Best, Second Best
Fisher's firm concluded that the best plan was for Outagamie and Winnebago counties to go together on an airport to be built west of Neenah. Second best, the firm said, was for Outagamie County to build its own airport and the best site was about 900 acres some two miles west of U.S. 41. Estimated cost for developing the site is $2,327,000, Fisher Associates indicated.

Applying against this total is the estimate that the county could get between $300,000 and $500,000 from the present airport.

Traffic Total
Chief executives of three major employers in Neenah and Kaukauna have indicated they will supply between 16,000 and 17,000 passengers annually to the new Outagamie County airport if it is built and if North Central, or some other airline provides adequate service. This is about a third of the total Oshkosh traffic in 1960, and does not consider other industrial traffic.

Outagamie supervisors will be voting on an intent to follow the Fisher plan to build a new airport, but they will not be voting on the actual construction or spending any money on the airport.

About 40 firemen and four pumper trucks were needed to confine the fire that destroyed Prah's Newsstand and Bowling alleys, New London, Sunday night. Damages were estimated at $50,000 as the spectacular blaze levelled the newsstand, soda fountain, lunch counter, beer bar and locker rooms. Patrons were forced to flee as flames suddenly filled the building. Firemen saved the two abutting buildings and the 10-lane alleys which connected the north end of the building, however, Emil's Bar and the Rieckmann Shoe store were damaged. (Story on Page 1).

Youth Seriously Hurt as Car Rolls Off County Trunk

Frank P. Offenbecher, Jr., 18, 500 E. Commercial St., was seriously hurt about 2 a.m. Sunday when his car traveled 195 feet on the shoulder of County Trunk E a mile north of U.S. 41, careened 72 feet across the road and tumbled over three times in 138 feet.

Offenbecher, taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by Lindy's ambulance, received a possible fractured skull. His passenger, Ronald Beyer, 21, 326 E. Summer St., got face and hand cuts and bruises.

Robert L. Kellhauser, 22, 609 First St., Menasha, escaped injury about 1:10 a.m. Sunday when his car overturned in a two-car collision on State 96 a block east of French Road.

Kellhauser's car and one driven by Gordon C. Breier, 46, 236 James St., Kimberly, side-swiped after Breier pulled onto 96. Breier was uninjured.

Kellhauser's car skidded 117 feet after the impact, left 87 feet of marks along the curb, then skidded 144 feet on its top, county police said.

Director of District Kennedy Campaign Gets White House Post

GREEN BAY — Timothy J. (Ted) Reardon, who directed the Eighth District campaign for Sen. John Kennedy in the Wisconsin primary last winter, was appointed Sunday as a White House administrative assistant by Kennedy.

Reardon, who directed the campaign from a Green Bay office, has been an assistant to Kennedy for 14 years during the President-elect's service in the House and Senate. He is a native of Somerville, Mass., and was a Harvard classmate of Joseph Kennedy Jr., the senator's brother who was killed in World War II.

Vessel Fails to Recover Capsule

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The capsule ejected from a payload that rocketed 1,000 miles into space apparently sank in the Atlantic ocean.

The air force presumed this yesterday when a recovery ship failed to find the 90-pound package during a day-long search. The hunt was called off at nightfall.

The payload and capsule were sent aloft Saturday by a Blue Scout I rocket which performed perfectly on its maiden flight. The capsule popped out of the 392-pound payload and parachuted into the ocean 1,200 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral.

A plane spotted it floating in the water and directed the ship to the area. The vessel, the Coast Guard Sentry, could not locate it.

The capsule contained instruments to measure velocity and payload temperatures during the flight. Recovery was a secondary objective. The air force was chiefly interested in how the Blue Scout I performed.

Baby Turns Color; Doctor Finds Cause
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mrs. William Schrolls noticed the complexion of her 3-week-old baby, Kenneth, turned from natural pink to blue and back again several times.

The alarmed parents hurried to General Hospital, where the baby went through the color-change cycle again.

An intern removed a marble from the child's throat. "It was popping up and down, acting as a valve which would let the child breathe when it was up and cut off his air supply when it was down," the intern said.

Thrown From Horse
Joan Porto, 15, route 2, Menasha, was thrown from a horse along U.S. 10 south of Appleton about 4:30 p.m. Sunday. She was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by Lindy's ambulance for treatment of a cut on the back of her head.

Youth Safe After Frigid Night in Open

MONTICELLO (AP) — A 15-year-old farm youth who spent the night in the woods in near-zero weather was found by searchers today. He appeared to have come through the ordeal in good shape.

The boy, Leon Gerber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Werner Gerber, disappeared shortly after 2 p.m. Sunday. He was the object of an all-night search by nearly 250 persons, including Monroe's Company C of the Wisconsin National Guard and volunteer firemen from nearby towns.

An airplane joined the search at dawn today, and the boy was found about 9 a.m., some three or four miles from the Gerber home, west of Monticello.

Earlier Sunday, Leon and a younger brother had gone hunting in the woods. After they returned, Leon again left the Gerber home and was last seen about 2:15 p.m.

Farmers in the area began searching about 6:30 p.m. A full scale search was organized by Sheriff A. Charles Howe about 4:30 a.m. At one time, 100 men, walking five feet apart, tramped through a heavily wooded section.

The temperature during the night was close to the zero mark.

Driver Charged After Car Runs Into Pole

Melvin E. Frahm, 24, 1514 E. Gunn St., was charged with failing to have his car under control after it hit a utility pole at Calumet and Lawe Streets about 9:30 p.m. Sunday. Frahm told police he dozed off.

Lorraine C. Fox, 44, 1206 W. Parkway Blvd., received leg injuries about 4:15 p.m. Saturday when her car collided with one driven by Lester H. Dietzen, 40, 308 W. 10th St., Kaukauna, at State and Lawrence Streets.

Jehovah's Witnesses Invited to Assembly

The Appleton congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses has been invited to attend a three-day assembly in Stevens Point, Feb. 3 to 5. Robert Jahne, presiding minister, said the P. J. Jacobs High School is the meeting site.

Over 800 witnesses from 21 congregations in east central Wisconsin are expected to attend.

Milwaukee UW Union to Cost $6 Million

Committee Approves Plans for First Stage Costing $1,800,000

MADISON (AP) — The University of Wisconsin Board of Regents has received a recommendation from its Business and Finance Committee that a $6 million Student Union addition be constructed at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

The committee suggested that preliminary plans and specifications be prepared for a first stage of the unit, costing not more than $1,800,000.

J. Martin Klotsche, provost at UWM, said that $1,600,000 of the first stage could be financed from a student fee of $10 or $5 a semester. The remainder could be raised by a fund-raising group he said.

Union Inadequate
Klotsche said that the existing union facility is inadequate and contains "a little bit of everything." It has a cafeteria that can accommodate only about 175-185 students at one time, he said.

"This is a completely ridiculous situation," Klotsche said. "The present student enrollment is about 5,600."

The food service facilities in the new first stage of the program would permit feeding 1,500 students at one time.

The regents apparently want no part of a squabble between Manitowoc and Two Rivers over location of a new UW extension center in Manitowoc County.

Up To Communities
The regents' Education Committee told a delegation from Manitowoc Friday that the Board of Regents has a traditional policy of not passing ahead of time on an extension center site, leaving the matter strictly up to the local communities.

Under the UW Extension Center policy, local communities provide the buildings, while the university provides the equipment and teachers.

The Manitowoc delegation, headed by Mayor Walter Koepke, told the committee that the fight between Manitowoc and Two Rivers is a "tug of war" to see who can get the most votes of the 51-member Manitowoc County Board which will select the site.

262 Measles Cases Reported in Appleton During Last Month
There were 412 cases of communicable diseases, including 262 of measles, in Appleton during December, the City Health Department reported today.

The outbreak of measles continues as health officials are busy answering calls from parents reporting their children's illness.

December communicable diseases included 69 cases of chicken pox, 63 of mumps, 12 of rubella (German measles) and six of scarlet fever.

670 Evacuated From Burning School
TWO RIVERS (AP) — About 670 pupils were evacuated safely today when fire broke out on the third floor of the St. Luke's Catholic Grade School.

Sister Catherine Marie said she was returning seventh and eighth grade pupils to class from recess when a boy saw smoke coming from a window.

"The children fled out as calmly as though a routine fire drill had been called," Sister Catherine Marie said.

The youngsters were sheltered in the nearby church as firemen fought the blaze, which was confined to the third floor auditorium of the 3½-story building.

Firemen said they could not determine the cause of the fire immediately.

Charlie Defends Stories About Donovan as Honest Reporting

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Fellow telephoned my home the other night to belabor me about two stories I wrote on the Terrence Donovan murder story. One was the news story on the confession he made to Sheriff Reindl of Menominee, Mich., and the other was a column I wrote on Donovan himself.

While I do not think he was proper to telephone my home, I agree with his right to complain if he believes he is right. I think he might have written a letter to me, or to the editor, and gone on and on about his point of view.

Incidentally, it was wrong. "You," he said, "have glorified this man for killing the young bride. You encourage crime by such glorification. You said nice things about him."

I think that it is the newspaper's job to discourage crime, and if you did your job right we could put an end to all crime."

That's what the man told me.

Now, really, I do not need to defend myself for either story. The reason I explain today is only as a matter of information to people who may feel as the man did.

Said my caller: "You said he was a pretty good boy!"

I said no such thing.

Boss Assigns Story

I think it will be of interest to readers to see how such stories come about, and to understand what a honest reporter must do.

Tuesday morning, the boss called me to his office to discuss the murder of the young woman. He told me, as I knew, that Terrence Donovan, a 25-year-old man of Peshtigo, was being held as the prime suspect in the slaying which took place on U.S. 41, a little more than a mile north of Menominee.

"Go up there," said the boss, "and see what kind of a young man he is. The evidence seems to be heavily against him. But go up and see what would make this young man commit murder. What kind of a fellow is he — find that out."

It is not often that I demur when I get an assignment, but I suggested that the story was a little "old" since it had been committed early the previous Saturday morning, and I was more interested in a more recent crime — another murder, a double one. But the boss won, and dutifully I departed to do my job.

Reports With Integrity

All day long I talked to people in Peshtigo, a city of only a little more than 2,000 people.

I talked to his mother and father at great length. When I finished that interview, I understood that I did not understand the murderer, but I really knew what his parents thought of him. I reported their feelings with integrity.

Actually, I did more than that. I tried to serve my readers with fidelity for, when Terrence's father made one statement some reporters would not have hesitated to use it because it was exciting. Now — because I can explain it — I will.

Donovan said, "It's all over and I don't feel a thing. I don't even care. I wash my hands of it."

Didn't Mean It

You will agree that is an amazing thing for a father to say, even for the father of a murderer. But I had talked with this father long enough to understand him. I knew he did not mean to say such a heartless thing. I knew—and knew intuitively and from experience—that Donovan was attempting to toughen himself against the hard days ahead. I did not think it would be fair to employ that hard statement, and I know I am right. Donovan simply does not feel that way: he pretended to himself.

That may be bad reporting; I don't think so. My responsibility is to the readers of this newspaper, and not to Donovan. But free. We don't have to worry about him any more."

I wrote about his strange nocturnal wanderings; I wrote about how he bragged — but always I qualified by adding "according to neighbors."

Some things I heard were gossip. I did not print them because they were plainly gossip. Many other reporters did.

For example, there was the case of vandalism in the high school a few years ago. Almost everybody I talked to told me that they thought Terrence had done it. But, though he was questioned, there was insufficient evidence and he was released. Should I say he did it? A reporter is not judge or jury. He is a reporter.

I did not report to you that Terrence was suspected of leaving a note saying that "I am going to rob the bank next Friday." The reason I did not report it was because it has not been shown in court or elsewhere that he was guilty of this. Should I print unconfirmed gossip?

Innocent Until Proven

A man — at least in the United States — is presumed innocent until he is proven guilty. Therefore, gossip has no place in this newspaper.

I did not report to you some more gossip — that Terrence had been vandalistic on another occasion. I checked police records and found that he had been ill and in bed at the time of the vandalism. Yet, the gossip floated through town — "Terrence did it." Many people said this.

I did two bad things in my reporting job. I thought this at the time and I still think so.

I checked the old records of the court trial where Terrence had been found "not guilty by reasons of temporary insanity" of an attack on a 13-year-old girl in 1953.

Not Objective

I quoted an advisory committee which, in 1955, told the court that Terrence Donovan "certainly has the potentialities for another breakdown such as suffered at the time of the attack."

My purpose for printing this statement was not objective and therefore a journalistic wrong. I wished, however, to show that the people and the court which freed him had had a warning five years before the murder of the innocent woman on Highway 41.

The other thing I felt I had done badly was to forget to include an interesting detail—that Terrence had been born prematurely and had weighed less than three pounds at the time of his birth. It was a small, unimportant matter, perhaps, but I erroneously left it out of my column.

But I did not glamorize the mentally ill murderer. And if you think I did, please don't call me at home to spoil my fun with the kids.

Write to the boss. He's a better scolder than you are; he's been at it for years.

First Firing on U. S. Flag Told in Story

more defensible Ft. Sumter, it was fired upon first by a battery set up on a small island. Before the ship finally was turned about and headed back for the open sea, it was caught under the crossfire of the island battery and a cutter in the harbor as the guns from Ft. Sumter kept silent. Ahead were the heavy guns of Southern held Ft. Moultrie, thus the decision was made for a hasty retreat.

Had Maj. Anderson come to the aid of the unarmed Star of the West or had the Confederate States of America been officially set up earlier than this, Feb. 18, 1861, date, this might be considered the first battle in the Civil War. As it was, the military men aboard the steamer believed that had the firing from Morris Island been held until the ship came into range of the guns of Ft. Moultrie, the Star of the West with its soldiers and crew would have been trapped.

The relative position of the two forts on Charleston harbor, the location of the Morris Island battery, the patrolling steamer with its armed cutter in tow all are explained in the clear-cut and dramatic narrative written 100 years ago. Note that the spelling of Ft. Sumter in that day was Sumpter.

Narrative Begins

"I awoke at three o'clock this morning and went immediately to the upper deck where I found the captain, mate and two military officers. I learned that we had arrived in the vicinity of Charleston harbor about midnight; that the coast lights had been extinguished, and that thus far it had been impossible to find the main channel. It is evident from these indications that the hospitable South Carolinians do not mean that we shall go in without a salute.

"A light was seen off the coast, but we could not make out what it was. A little after three o'clock we discovered the lights of Fort Sumpter, and with these exceptions, everything was dark. It was, of course, impossible to get over the bar without the lighthouse, and so we waited until the break of day.

"I have never seen a finer morning than the one which dawned upon us. The sky was clear and the moon, a faint crescent of silver, had just risen. The low coast looked like a dense forest of evergreen. The spires of Charleston became visible in the approaching daylight, and on the walls of Sumpter we descried the American flag floating in the breeze.

Alarm Signals

"Now, about half past six, we see the lighthouse; and now, too, we discover that the mysterious light just mentioned was that of a steamer at our right. Now the situation of the channel is ascertained, and we are under way.

Now the steamer at our right is burning red and blue lights and is sending up rockets. There is no mistaking her movement; she is giving the alarm signal to Fort Moultrie.

"On we go, the soldiers are below with their muskets loaded, and the officers are ready to give the word if there is anything to do. Now it is broad day light, and we are making directly into the guns of Fort Moultrie whose black walls are distinctly visible.

"The little steamer at our right is burning a signal light aft, and is making all possible headway up the harbor. Now we discover a red Palmetto flag at our left, on Morris Island, at a little village called Cummings Point, and apparently but a little more than a mile from Fort Sumpter.

"Is it possible that those fellows have got a battery off here?" asks one.

"No," answers another, "there is no battery there."

Shooting Starts

"But there is. It is now a quarter past seven, and we are about two miles from Forts Sumpter and Moultrie, which are equal distances from us, and suddenly, whizz! comes a ricochet shot from Morris Island. It plunges into the water and skips along, but falls short of our steamer. The line was forward of our bow, and was, of course, an invitation for us to stop. But we are not ready to accept the hospitality and the captain pays no attention to it, except to run up the Stars and Stripes at the masthead.

"A moment of anxious suspense, and bang! goes a heavy cannon from the same masked battery. The shot falls short of us a hundred yards or more and bounds clean over our vessel, aft, nearly on a line with the head of a sailor, but luckily a little above it.

"On we go, and whizz! again goes the smaller gun first fired, and another ricochet shot skips along the water and falls short of us.

"On we go, without heeding the compliments of our Charleston friends. Another moment, and bang! goes the heavy gun. A ball now strikes our ship in the fore-chains, about two feet above the water.

Seaman Scurries

"A seaman was holding the lead to take soundings, and the ball struck directly under his feet. It is not surprising that, under the circumstances, Jack was strongly inclined to take his heels, and he begins to scramble up with might and main, when the captain assures him that there is no danger on the principle, I suppose, that lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

"Jack, reassured, patiently takes his place again and drops the lead. The ball, fortunately, was too far spent to go through the side of our vessel, although it left an honorable scar.

"The battery continued to play upon us, and a huge ball comes clean over us near the wheel house. We are not within range of the guns of Fort Moultrie, and yonder is a cutter in tow of a steamboat, preparing to fire upon us.

A moment more and we shall be in range of these batteries. The gunners on Morris Island are growing more confident; if they get our range they will send a shot through our side scattering death and destruction. In front, Moultrie will bring her heavy guns to bear down upon us and will drive their deadly missiles into our bow, while the cutter will open on our right.

Ft. Sumter Silent

"Why does not Major Anderson open fire upon that battery and save us? We look in vain for help; the American flag flies from Fort Sumpter, and the American flag at our bow and stern is being fired upon, yet there is not the slightest recognition of our presence from the fort.

"The unexpected battery from Morris Island cuts off all hope of escape by running the vessel aground near Sumpter and taking to the boats.' Is it possible that Fort Sumpter has been taken by the South Carolinians? If it has not, why does not Major Anderson show that he will protect us or at least recognize us in some way? To go within range of Fort Moultrie is to expose vessel, men and stores to almost instant destruction or capture by the enemy.

Away They Go

"Helm out of port," shouts the captain. The Star of the West is turned about without any great loss of time as you may imagine. We turn without accident, and steam away, with the Stars and Stripes still floating and the battery still playing upon us by way of parting salute.

"As we steam away, the steamer near Fort Moultrie having the hostile cutter in tow, steams away into the Swash channel, evidently with the intention of cutting off our retreat; but she soon abandons the chase and we sail out without a man killed or wounded, our stars unharmed, and proceed unmolested, probably on our homeward bound journey.

"After the brief but exciting experience, I am prepared without hesitation to concur with the captain in the opinion that it is very unpleasant to be fired at with hard cannon balls without a chance to fire back.

"I wish to say, however, that no man aboard showed any symptoms of fear. Capt. McGowan and the pilot, Mr. Brewer, were probably special marks for the Morris Island battery, since a good shot through the wheel house would have been most disastrous. The soldiers, although two-thirds of them were recruits, appeared to be quite indifferent to the music, while the officers agreed that it was scandalous that they could not fight back.

Incoming Vessel

"Soon after crossing the bar of Charleston harbor, on our homeward course, we met a fine sailing vessel, the Emily St. Pierre, of Charleston. Captain McGowan stopped and hailed.

"Whither do you hail from?"

"Liverpool."

"Whither bound?"

"To Charleston."

"What flag do you sail under?"

"So far the American."

"Then you can't go into Charleston," said our captain.

"They will not let the American flag into that port. They fired upon me when I was sailing under the American flag."

Carolina Flag Ready

"Then I suppose I must go in under the Palmetto flag," said he of the Emily St. Pierre.

"Then I ought to take you," shouted our captain with energy.

"War has been declared; they fired upon us and you are a lawful prize."

"You do whatever you like," replied the other, "You are the stronger party."

"Captain McGowan concluded that, inasmuch as he had not as yet a commission from the government he would let the Emily St. Pierre go her way, but declared that if he had his commission it would be delightful to bring her off after the treatment he had received this morning from Charleston.

Good Shooting

"The military men aboard highly complimented the South Carolinians on their shooting as to their future movements. The skill in this, their first attempt. They said it was done well and that all was needed was a little more range, which they probably could have attained in a few more minutes. Their line done was perfect and the opinion is expressed that some one had charge

To Your Good Health

Child's Adult Height Can be Predicted by These Formulas

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

Here's one set of formulas to calculate how tall a baby will be when he or she grows up. There are other formulas, but this one seems to work reasonably well.

BOYS: Take height at 2 years and multiply by two to get height at 18 years. Take weight at 2 years and multiply by five to estimate weight at 18 years.

GIRLS: Take height at 18 months, multiply by two to find height at 18 years; take weight at 18 months and multiply by five to find weight at 18 years.

Or here's another formula for height:

Take the mother's height, multiply by 1.08. Then add the father's height. Divide the answer by two, to get the likely height of a son.

Or, for girls: Take the father's height, and multiply by .923. Add mother's height. Divide by two.

It's Heredity

Obviously this isn't going to work in all cases. It isn't often that two or more sons (or daughters) will turn out to be exactly the same height. But usually they are more or less alike, and when a child is substantially different, it's the exception rather than the rule.

After all, we are the products of our heredity. If, in a family of average height, there happens to be one grandparent, or great grandparent, who happened to be unusually tall or unusually short, it's not surprising for an occasional child to inherit the characteristic. In fact, I think it might be a pretty dull world if everybody grew up to be strictly average in size, shape, brains and disposition.

Heredity is a powerful and persistent force, but it mixes in varying proportions all the characteristics in the family tree. Remember the beautiful actress who wanted to marry George Bernard Shaw, arguing that children with her beauty and his brains would be pretty wonderful? And of the guns who understood his business.

"Two guns were employed. The smaller, it is believed, was a twelve pounder and the larger a thirty pounder. This, however, is only conjecture. Whatever their size, they were well manned. They were fired rapidly and with a will.

"It is believed that if the South Carolinians had not made a mistake we should have partaken of their hospitality as prisoners. If the battery on Morris Island had waited ten minutes more before firing we should have been completely at their mercy. It was only necessary for them to have waited until we were in range of the guns at Fort Moultrie, and escape would have been impossible.

"It is believed that the cutter in tow of the steamboat was the William Aiken, which was treacherously surrendered to the South Carolinians by its commander.

"We crossed the Charleston bar, outward bound, about nine o'clock. There was a consultation as to our future movements. The impossibility of entering the harbor and landing at Fort Sumpter was sufficiently apparent. We had no instructions except to go to Fort Sumpter, so it was decided that the only thing to be done was to put back to New York as soon as possible."

tion after generation. Others are best preventive is to drink an abundance of water, which serves to keep the urine dilute. Infection or defects in the urinary tract, if they exist, must be corrected. Finally, altering the acidity or alkalinity of the urine by means of medications may reduce a tendency toward formation of stones.

Heart Attacks

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can or does a person ever have more than one or two heart attacks?"

—E.H.G.

Oh, yes. They may be months or years apart. In many cases an attack is so mild that we do not know about it until afterward.

Jackie High on Fashion List, but Husband Isn't

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy tops the best-dressed list of the world's 12 best-dressed women, but her president-elect husband is low man on some clothes designers' totem pole.

The lovely first lady-to-be was selected by the New York Couture Group, Inc., to head the list of the world's 12 best-attired women.

View Suits
As for the president-elect, his current supply of suits were viewed with some anxiety by members of the International Association of Clothing Designers who gathered at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel for their 50th annual convention.

Some opinions on Kennedy's dress:
His coat lapels are of the old-fashioned, wide variety.
The shoulders of his suits are much too broad.

There are only two buttons on his jacket and the two buttons are too low on the suit.

After Mrs. Kennedy, the official 1960 list of best-dressed among the world's women names the following:

Vicomtesse Jacqueline de Ribes, of Paris.

New York Winner
Mrs. Norman K. Winston, of New York and Paris.

Donna Marella Ugnelli, of Turin, Italy.

Mrs. Loel Guinness, of Paris and Palm Beach.

Mrs. Patrick Guinness, of Lausanne, Switzerland, daughter of Mrs. Loel Guinness.

Princess Alexandra of Kent, daughter of the Duchess of Kent.

Mrs. John Barry Ryan III, of New York.

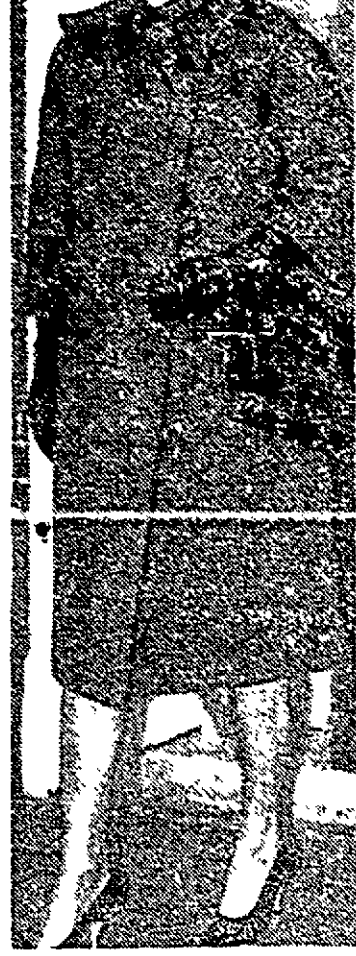

Mrs. David K. Bruce, of Washington.

Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, of Paris and New York.

Queen Sirikit of Thailand.

Hollywood actress Audrey Hepburn, left, and Mrs. John F. Kennedy, wife of the president-elect, were included in the list of the world's 12 best-dressed women. Mrs. Kennedy tops it. Her husband, however, is low man as far as fashions are concerned. Designers have criticized his suits, coats and jackets as being old fashioned and out of style.

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

THOUGHTFUL MOTHER

I hope that you will let your readers in on a pleasant surprise that we have just had. We were unable to attend a large wedding in another city. We sent the bride a round silver serving tray. A few days after the wedding we received a friendly, delightful note from her mother. She acknowledged the tray and told us how thrilled her daughter was when she opened the box. She also commented that our gift had been packed that day, ready to be shipped along with the others to San Francisco where the couple will make their home. She also remarked that her daughter would be writing us in the near future. I have heard of engraved acknowledgments mailed out by a bride's mother, stating that a thank you note would be sent by the bride at a later date. This takes its place in such a wonderful way.

Louise Davis Answers:
Bravo for mother and I hope others will be so thoughtful as I can't think of anything more heartwarming. It adds to the joy of giving. With a mother like that, I guarantee that you will be hearing from the daughter without any delay.

BREAD AND BUTTER LETTER
How soon after a visit as a house guest should one write a bread and butter letter?

Louise Davis Answers:
One should write as soon as a pen can be picked up. While memories are vivid and enthusiasm is high, the thank you message is simple to write and it conveys sincerity and appreciation.

Another best-dressed woman was Queen Sirikit of Thailand. She was chosen by a poll of style experts and society leaders. Below is Mrs. Norman K. Winston of New York and Paris.

Mrs. Loel Guinness of Paris and Palm Beach was also given the nod. She is wearing a full-length flower print gown which comes to a V in the front and back.

Ann Declares War on Alcohol Until Collapse of Typewriter

Dear Readers: In a recent column "Moderate Mixer" criticized me sharply for my "relentless and boring" tirades against liquor. He told me to "cut out the harping." According to "Moderate Mixer" a great many people handle liquor successfully, and that it's a pleasant part of daily living. I told "Moderate Mixer" bully for him if he was handling his liquor successfully. But more than five million Americans are not handling it with any success whatever—and alcoholism in this country is an increasingly serious socio-economic problem. I also told him that I intend to continue to harp on the subject until my typewriter falls apart. Many readers wrote to say they would like to buy me a new typewriter if the old one collapses. I wish to thank all who did so, but my machine is in good condition and it should last for many years. These are some of the reactions to Moderate Mixer's remarks: From San Francisco: The latest figures on alcoholism disclose that every day approximately 1,000 Americans cross the line that divides the social drinker from the addict. Almost five billion dollars annually is spent in America on liquor. This could build a dozen million dollar schools every day of the year. If this isn't sickening, what is?—Mr. Experience. From Houston: I'd like to take an axe and smash every bottle of liquor in this house. Both my parents inherited money so nobody works. They sit and drink all day and at night it's more of the same. My brother and I eat in the kitchen with the help because our parents fight like cats and dogs at the dinner table and we just can't take it. I'm saving your wonderful column on Moderate Mixer and I plan to show it to them—when they can see.—Old at 15. Philadelphia: As personnel director in a large plant I can tell you that absenteeism which can be traced directly to hangovers is shocking. The cost to industry is millions annually. In addition to this, there is a direct correlation between industrial accidents and drinking. Springfield, Ill.: Tell those "social drinkers" that the 1953 surveys of The National Safety Council revealed that one out of every three fatal automobile accidents involved a drinking driver. The figure jumped to more than 50 per cent on major holidays. Escanaba, Mich.: Please print this one sentence—it may save a life. Drinking an alcoholic beverage after taking medication of any type can produce a dangerous loss of reflexes and an ordinarily safe driver can become a killer behind a wheel. My brother took one drink after visiting his dentist. The liquor plus the novocaine did it. Seattle, Wash.: If a woman can't think of a better reason to leave the bottle alone she should consider what it does to her looks. My mother has twin sisters. They are 35 years old. The alcoholic twin looks 20 years older than the twin who doesn't drink. The non-drinking aunt has had five children and has worked hard all her life. The drinking aunt has had one child, has never had to work and she goes to the beauty shop twice a week. This example in our own family has made a teetotaler out of me. Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1961)

Beginning Cook

The most important ingredient for an inexperienced cook is to gain self confidence in the kitchen. A modern range helps to instill confidence because its heat is completely controllable. When the flame is high, you know you have peak heat. When it is low be no heat hangover. You can be assured that foods will not burn, scorch or boil over, with no danger of its spilling. When you turn the control to over or over-cooking.

American Designer Pattern

This simple dress with its beautiful shape was recently given much publicity when it was purchased by a famous young matron. The bodice is slight, semi-fitted, the waist gently lowered at the sides. Paradox in Rules Urged By Expert

When you first learn to play bridge you must develop good habits. Later, as an experienced player, you must learn when to break your habits.

Put yourself in the South seat, playing at a contract of three no trump. West opens the deuce of spades, and it is up to you to plan the play.

Opening lead — ♠ 2

It would be pleasant to lead hearts twice from the dummy, for then you could make two heart tricks if East had the ace of hearts. This would be a normal line for the contract, and most players would follow it if they could out of sheer habit.

Since you can reach dummy only once, what do you plan to do? One possibility is to give up a low club and hope for a 3-3 break in the suit. If this comes to pass, you will win a trick with your last club. Still, the odds are almost 2 to 1 against a favorable break in clubs, and you would prefer to find something better.

Go After Hearts

You can do better if you go after hearts. Since you cannot lead from the dummy toward your king-queen, try leading from your hand toward dummy's 10.

This play will develop two heart tricks for you if West has the jack of hearts. If West puts up the jack, dummy's 10 will remain to force out the ace later. If West fails to put up the jack dummy's ten will either win the trick or knock out the ace at once.

There are a few additional chances. You will win two heart tricks if either opponent has the singleton ace. Likewise if East has A-J doubleton. You even have a chance if East has A-J-x.

Just finding the jack of hearts in the West hand gives you an even chance for the contract. The extra chances don't add much, but every little bit helps—and the total is certainly better than being on the short end of a 2 to 1 shot. (Copyright, 1961)

Modern Education Needs Revamping

BY ANGELO PATRI

If the harassed boards of education would stop trying to provide modern education for its pupils and teachers by outmoded methods and take a new view of the whole picture from the structure of the building to the classroom management, they would come closer to meeting the situation.

Schooling has become very costly. It is the usual, "Everything costs more these days." Our children must be educated for the world they will face, indeed are facing. We have to make each dollar do more and the place to start is with the building.

Now, the building is created for just one reason: for the education of the young. Good. Most people in this country have come to understand that the education of the individual student is the aim of the school. Experience tells us that this basic factor must be considered in constructing a school building and that makes the fixed classroom unit almost impossible. Individual training calls for flexible units, movable walls, small units here and there for specific purposes which are specific only when the teacher says they are to be so.

Next, take another look at the notion that no class shall number more than 30 — or less than something else. The number of pupils in a class fluctuates with the situation facing the teacher. We have taught elementary classes of 50, sometimes more, successfully, and we have taught classes of 10, of one, according to the need of the pupils concerned. Also, we have taught classes of 500 in an auditorium using motion pictures, or music, and the children learned to the standard required by the states regents. The number of pupils to a teacher should vary with the need of the pupils, and the minds of the principal and teachers must be flexible to allow the program to be so.

Quality Important

Next, the quality of the teacher is highly important. The superior teacher can teach big classes and small ones because he can teach. This teacher cannot be had cheaply. Quality comes high and why shouldn't our children have such teachers?

What I am asking is that boards

New Manufacturing Method Predicts Change in Chairs

Seen for the first time today in Chicago at spring furniture previews are these four chairs, which introduce a new method of manufacturing — the molding of polyurethane foam onto steel. Strength and softness combine in one comfortably shaped piece while the steel frame is in a mold-liquid poured into the mold is turned to foam which adheres to the steel.

Technical advances like this head toward wishful thinking — come true for every home — sturdier furniture as easier — to afford prices — and new methods widen possibilities for variety of style. Chairs made this way speed production and save material, since all the foam is used — none must be cut off and thrown away. The entire shell is thickly upholstered and covering with fabric is complete except for the legs. The pilot chairs are fashionably wide and curved, and add separate seat cushions.

Mrs. V. H. H. "We hope to use our light oak furniture in the master bedroom of our new house until we can buy new walnut or fruitwood furniture. I've tried to plan a color scheme which will go equally well with the old and the new, based on wallpaper which has a pale sage green background. I intend to match the bedspreads to the sage and use hyacinth blue from the wallpaper pattern for the rug and a bench cover. I prefer white curtains. May I have your opinion of this and a suggestion for the color of a small upholstered chair?"

You have chosen a scheme which is attractive with both light and darker furniture. The chair might be covered in a deep green which definitely relates to the light sage green.

Mrs. K. Y. "We bought an old house which has paneled wainscoting in several rooms, the kind that's too high on the walls and it has a shiny varnish finish. We'd like to remove it all, but if this is inadvisable, what should be done?"

Removal depends on how difficult it is to loosen the wainscoting, and it is usually necessary to do an extensive job of repairing and refinishing the wall underneath. If the wainscoting is in

Wittenberg WMF Reforms as ALCW

WITTENBERG — The Women's Missionary Federation at its final meeting at First Lutheran Church made plans for reorganizing as a chapter of the American Lutheran Church Women (ALCW). A panel discussion was led by the Rev. Eugene Peterson, Mrs. Norman Nelson and Mrs. Arthur Larson on the necessary changes.

Elected as officers were Mrs. Norman Nelson, president; Mrs. Andrew Nelson, vice president; Mrs. Olm Hagen, treasurer; Mrs. Gust Norrbom, secretary, and Mrs. Arthur Larson, steward.

It was voted to organize four circles within the organization on a trial basis with temporary chairman of each group being Mrs. Morris Nelson, Mrs. Eugene Peterson, Mrs. Ingvald Larson and Mrs. Ray Peterson.

good condition and snug to the walls, you might try a shine-less wood finish in a better color, or paint it. The effect of the awkward height is lost when wainscoting no longer contrasts sharply with wall above it — paint the upper wall a lighter shade of the wood finish, or paint the complete wall one color.

When the curtain opened on the second annual "Belles Are Singing" show Saturday evening at Lawrence Memorial Chapel, the audience was treated to a scene resembling a newly opened box of bonbons.

The Kimberlaire chorus, dressed in confectioner's pink and sparkling with rhinestones, stood on a stage decorated with white flocked pine trees. Red, blue and silver stars glittered approval and a smiling moon gazed beneficently at the proceedings.

The notion that the pink and white dolls onstage were made of sugar candy was quickly dispelled as they raised their voices with gusto in full-toned harmony. The many hours of rehearsal spent by the group, made up of working girls, mothers and housewives, was evident in their sharp timing, clear enunciation and pleasing delivery. All of this, coming so close upon the heels of a holiday season which, to most young women, is a hectic and tiring affair, added to the accomplishment. The audience, too, was ready to sit back and enjoy the evening's program.

Old Songs

One of the nicest parts of barbershop is that it brings back the old familiar songs. The Astro Notes, an Appleton quartet composed of Roger Kirkeide, Edward Broehm, Don Balke, and Rollie Tonnell, were a program replacement and did a commendable job in getting the entertainment underway. "If You Were the Only Girl in the World," and "Baby Your Mother" were among their offerings. Close chording and a fine stage presence should make them real contenders in future contests.

The Melodys, District 5 Sweet Adeline Champions from Sheboygan, had a relaxed and easy manner that connoted obvious enjoyment of their task. Their rendition of a Croatian love song was especially moving.

Comedy, Too

Comedy was handled with aplomb and effervescence by the Mid-States Four, former International S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. champions. This quartet has been singing since 1943 and has traveled across the globe entertaining servicemen. The old time songs seem to be their meat and potatoes, and they served a delicious meal to an audience which had the appetite to appreciate the concoction of fine flavors.

The Sweet and Lows, a quartet of beautiful young women from Chicago, showed their talents with the modern ballad as well as with conventional barbershop times.

Mrs. James Van Den Elsen, director of the Kimberlaire, put her seven jewels on display for an audience which was quickly captivated by their gleam and polish.

The Oshkosh Barbershop Chorus, which performed ushering duties, treated listeners to the sound of well-blended voices capable of both power and delicacy.

With the success of their second show, the Kimberlaire have added to the Fox Cities list of "things to look forward to." Next year, we'll hope for Number 3.

Remove Melted Plastic

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

"TOASTED" PLASTIC COVER

Question: I replaced my plastic cover on my toaster before it had cooled and the plastic is now sticking to the toaster in places. How can I remove this?

Answer: Try careful rubbing with fine steel wool and acetone or a nonflammable liquid spot remover. Be sure the toaster is cold and disconnected while you are working.

WAXING CORK FLOOR

Question: One of the bedrooms in our new apartment has a cork floor. Can this be waxed?

Answer: Yes. A liquid self-polishing wax can be used on cork. Be sure the surface is clean. For an unwaxed floor, put on at least two coats; the first coat must be thoroughly dry before the second coat is applied.

CONCRETE FLOOR DULL

Question: We have a colored concrete floor on our porch. When it is washed, before it dries, it looks good; dry, it's dull looking. How can it be brightened? It isn't dusty or powdery.

Answer: One or two applications of good quality paste wax should brighten the appearance. Buff each coat of wax thoroughly for a lustrous finish.

RUST-STAINED MARBLE

Question: We have a small marble wash basin that developed rust stains from a leaking faucet. How can the rust stains be removed?

Answer: A rust-removing preparation for marble is available at some marble dealers and some instructions. Or try the following: Dissolve about two ounces of oxalic acid crystals (poison) in a quart of hot water and apply the solution liberally over the stains. Allow to remain a few minutes, then rinse well with clear water.

CLEANING WALLPAPER

Question: How can wallpaper that isn't washable be safely cleaned?

Answer: A wallpaper cleaning preparation is available at wallpaper dealers and paint and hardware stores. It is a doughlike substance which is rolled and kneaded over the wallpaper surface, never rubbed, and picks up dust and soot.

DAMP CHIMNEY WALL

Question: The wall over our chimney seems damp during the summer. Will the plaster be affected? How can we overcome this?

Answer: Probably the plaster was applied directly to the chimney itself. This always causes trouble because of condensation. (Warm, humid house air, coming in contact with the cool masonry surface, condenses; this could eventually damage the plaster. The only solution is to remove the present plaster and build a false wall of one of the various wallboards, over 1" furring strips. This will create a dead air space which will insulate sufficiently to prevent condensation. The wallboard can be painted or papered, as desired.

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

Antidote for Winter Skin

Weather takes a toll of a woman's skin, wherever she winters in lanolin, plus allantoin and under tropical sun, on ski slopes moisturizers. And do space these treatments. If you bathe in the morning, rub down at night, and vice versa.

To prevent that calamity is the aim of today's column. The method is simple as could be. So why not follow them and play safe?

For keeping your allover complexion out of harm's way, just add a penetrating bath oil to the water before your daily plunge. Effective preparations do not float on top of the water, but mix with it. Also rub down each day!

As for your facial complexion, it would benefit from a bathoil rinse after any washing. Simply wash and rinse, as usual. Then draw a fresh basin of water, add a few drops of bath oil, and repeatedly splash your face.

Of course, the faithful use of a suitable powder base and night-care product is a "must." On mountain tops and beaches, sun-tan lotion is as necessary in winter as in summer. In furnace-heated houses, humidifiers would provide much of the natural moisture skin thrives on.

MARGUERITE SCHUMANN, a marvel of premeditated consistency, opened with the Bach English Suite No. 2, which was classically cool and contained, yet not without a scampering humor or sections in which fragile ornaments bloomed like flowers. Then there was Beethoven's Sonata in C sharp Minor, Op. 27, No. 2, scrubbed of all sloppy moonlight sentiment, dignified and grave, with the sheer beauty of the score revealed but not commented on. Hindemith's Ludus Tonalis revealed the work-methods of Bach cast in 20th century tonalities, and was a meteor shower of different styles of brilliance. Brahms' Fantasies Op. 116 gave Rehl opportunity to show his most deeply personal idiom. Each was superb in its one way. Clearly Theodore Rehl is one of the bright young men, not only of this city but of this whole region, and Lawrence is lucky to have him.

Knowles Asks Emphasis on Traffic Safety

Will Ask Legislature To Re-Evaluate State Program, Laws

A re-evaluation of state traffic safety programs and regulations during the 1961 legislative session has been called for by Lt. Gov. Warren P. Knowles.

"The tragic increase in traffic deaths during 1960 makes determined and conscientious action in the field of traffic safety mandatory," Knowles said.

Knowles referred to the 1960 reverse in the steady trend toward improved traffic safety. Traffic fatalities jumped from 821 in 1959 to 921 in 1960, a 12 per cent increase, after a decrease from 855 in 1956 to 919 in 1957 and 823 in 1958.

Motor Vehicle Study
Knowles said he would urge the legislature to take action. "Among other things, a study should be made to determine whether the safety division of the Motor Vehicle Department has sufficient personnel, an adequate budget,

While Males Decline Coeds Take the Lead In St. Norbert Life

"The St. Norbert Times," student newspaper at St. Norbert College, carried headlines like "Coeds Make Debut" and "Dean of Women Added to Staff" in 1952, when women — 26 of them — made their first regular sports desk, normally considered a man's domain.

The school's yearbook, the Des Peres, is in the same state as the "Times", with a pair of coeds sharing duties as chief editors.

While it is probably most noticeable in co-curricular life, the coeds also are making their presence felt more and more in academic life. Despite being outnumbered by about a 4 to 1 margin in enrollment, women captured 27 of 45 places on the first quarter dean's list, the school's high honor roll.

The 1961 publication of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" will carry the names of 13 St. Norbert women and eight St. Norbert men. This shows that the coeds have a fine balance between their academic and co-curricular lives, since it is outstanding work in both fields that qualified them for "Who's Who."

Although the ratio of men to women is gradually narrowing, all but a few of the coeds are commuting students from the Green Bay-De Pere area since there are rooming facilities for only about 25 girls on the campus.

Despite this disadvantage, the co-curricular program now includes three sororities which have grown out of the original one club for coeds.

Airport Players Aim For Theater Stardom

Skylark Theater in Fourth-Floor Loft of Idlewild's Control Tower

BY PAUL BUIAR

NEW YORK (AP) — The road to Broadway and stardom has begun in many strange places, but never from the control tower of an airport.

Now even this is possible.

Since last summer a concerted effort has been in progress to draw the multi-million dollar, jet-age New York International Airport at Idlewild into the orbit of the highly successful Off-Broadway legitimate theater.

Theater With a View

The instrument is "Idlewild Players," a group of professional, semi-professional and amateur actors. They operate in the "Skylark Theater," a sound-proof, glass-walled, fourth-floor loft of the 10-story control tower at the field.

Venetian blinds are lowered during performances. Before and after the show they are drawn, revealing the spectacle of planes landing and taking off.

During warm weather months, the effect is heightened by a huge water display at the airport's Liberty Plaza, with lights of different colors playing on the scene.

Newsmen Founder

The founder, promoter and guiding spirit of Idlewild Players is Thomas Del Vecchio, a newspaperman who has covered La Guardia and Idlewild airports for many years. Since his teens he has had an ambition to be a playwright and has written several plays during his 35-year newspaper career. None has reached Broadway.

Del Vecchio likes to talk theater. Through such uninhibited discussion with others at the airport he learned, to his surprise, that some airport employees were frustrated actors.

One thing led to another and Idlewild Players was founded in the spring of 1959. Word reached Broadway and unemployed professionals wanted in.

First Effort

The group's first effort was produced in September 1959. It was a contemporary comedy, "Design for Scandal," written by Del Vecchio. Those who saw it in the 150-seat (folding chairs, rented) theater liked it. There was one review, by Milton Caine of "Aviation News," a bi-weekly newspaper serving the industry. He thrilled the cast by writing: "It looks like a hit."

The troupe's next production was a 15-character costume piece, "Proclaim Liberty," which Del Vecchio adapted from a book he had written about Tom Paine.

Caine again approved. The production last March was directed by Joseph Ryan, formerly of the Poet's Theater of Boston and the Boston Repertory Theater.

Amateur Standing

New York City newspapers have not reviewed Idlewild Players because they are classified as an amateur group. The cast feels, however, that professional reviews could lead to Broadway. Del Vecchio, who has footed all the bills up to now, hopes to attract sufficient support in the near future to pay his players the minimum Actors Equity scale.

Del Vecchio remains a realist, however. Although his dreams are for Broadway, his plans are for establishing Idlewild Players as a permanent repertory theater at the airport with a stress on original plays and new actors.

The next planned production is an "original" although it was written by a master, the late Eugene O'Neill.

Future Plans

The drama, "Servitude," is thought to have been written about 1914 but never produced. The plot involves a playwright and a triangle. Uncharacteristically for O'Neill, however, it has a happy ending. It is scheduled to open April 22.

Also planned is a series of one-act plays by Lajos Egri and, perhaps, some other works by Del Vecchio.

Noted Musical Group to Present Concert at DePere

The third and final presentation in St. Norbert College's 1960-61 Fine Arts Concert series will be the Collegium Musicum in a concert of medieval, renaissance, and early baroque music.

The Collegium Musicum is a five-person group of musicians organized in 1949 by Dr. George Hunter of the University of Illinois. It specializes in coming as close as possible to the sound of music from many centuries ago as it was originally performed. This involves the use of authentic instruments and the study of many forgotten techniques of playing and singing.

The organization has made many appearances before learned musical societies and is widely known in musical circles for its recording of the music of Guillaume de Machaut. The Collegium Musicum makes several tours each year.

The freshness of the music and the unusual, attractive appearance of such instruments as the lute, vielle, and viola da gamba have delighted audiences of professional and non-professional music lovers alike.

Friars' Club Honors, Ribs Gary Cooper

Hero of Westerns Sheds a Few Tears, Makes Brief Speech

BY JAMES BACON

AP TV-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gary Cooper, the fearless hero whose slightest glance terrorizes movie badmen, wept last night as Hollywood honored his 35-years-of stardom.

Gary Cooper

The Friars' Club, raising $100,000 for charity, tossed a $100-a-plate testimonial dinner for the tall in the saddle actor.

On the dias were the usual array of comics, plus such dignitaries as poet Carl Sandburg, motor tycoon Henry Ford II, California Governor Edmund (Pat) Brown and movie pioneers Jack L. Warner and Sam Goldwyn.

It was an evening of reverence and good-humored irreverence. Glowing tribute came from such as Audrey Hepburn, Greer Garson, Sandburg, Ford and Gov. Brown. The ribbing — a tradition at Friars' dinners — came mostly from Warner, Milton Berle and Jack Benny.

Said Warner: "I've always had great faith in Coop. What the heck else can you have in a guy who gets $20,000 a week from you? No faith?"

Berle called Cooper: "The Grandpa Moses of the prairie." And added: "He's built like Slim Sumner, talks like Roscoe Ates and is about as romantic as Oscar Levant on an island with Elsa Maxwell."

Benny listed all of Cooper's activities both on and off screen, then said: "Now, he's seriously thinking of taking up acting."

Goldwyn contributed one of his famous Goldwynisms to the occasion. The movie pioneer made a glowing speech of how he had put Cooper in his first big picture 35 years ago. The name of the picture? Sam couldn't remember.

George Jessel, the M.C., told Sam it was "The Winning of Barbara Worth." And then added: "And you're Sam Goldwyn."

It was a great evening, and the 59-year-old Cooper, sniffling and occasionally wiping off a tear, stole the show with a speech of characteristic brevity.

"Am I the luckiest guy alive tonight...? Yep."

The Golden Years

Describes Retirement Town Pattern of Life

BY THOMAS COLLINS

Here is a firsthand report on how retirement usually begins for the couple that moves to the sunshine when the pension comes.

The town is in a well-known retirement area. It is pleasant and fairly typical.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith arrive in the town without much real knowledge about it. They don't know its history, where its money comes from, where its sewage goes or what special taxes will hit them.

A former neighbor or business friend who now lives here lured them down. Or possibly they heard or read somewhere that this town was a friendly and comfortable place for a pension. Maybe they've visited here before. Odds are that they know somebody, for few retired couples like to move into a town full of strangers.

Gold-Plated Prospects

Mr. and Mrs. Smith drive into the town in their car. They register at a motel, contact their former friend, go to the local chamber of commerce, and in a couple of days wind up at a real estate office.

People like this are known in most real estate offices in retirement country as gold-plated prospects. They probably have sold their home in the north, and have enough cash money to buy a new one for retirement. They are anxious to see if the real estate office has a house that fits their resources and affords some friendly neighbors.

They also are a quick sell because they want to get out from under the bill they are running up at the motel, and have to get their furniture out of the house up north.

Good For Town The Smiths are gold-plated prospects to the town as a whole. They have no small children to crowd local schools. They're not agitators.

They have a guaranteed monthly income that will go on even if a depression comes, all of which they are inclined to spend in the town since people of their age seldom go gallivanting around the countryside.

Perhaps most important of all the Smiths, if they can be happily settled in the town, will start writing letters to every 65-year-old couple they ever knew, extolling its virtues. They become a more effective advertising agency than the chamber of commerce.

Get Royal Welcome

So the Smiths settle down in their retirement town as treasured citizens.

For two months or so they find they are treated as celebrities of sorts. Delightful strangers call at their home to introduce themselves as friends, to give them welcome gifts from the local merchants and to invite them to church, club meetings or what have you.

They are the prime topic of conversation in their immediate neighborhood and as a rule can be assured of at least half a dozen invitations to dinner if they are nice people with friendly ready-sell if the real estate office has a house that fits their re-

Then life, as it always does, sits

Actors Swap Roles In Behan's 'Hostage'

NEW YORK (AP) — A spur-of-the-moment role swap lived up to recent performance of "The Hostage." Brendan Behan's wild Irish play.

Maxwell Shaw and Michael Forrest exchanged parts with the okay of the stage manager—who thought they were kidding.

Forrest, who is Shaw's understudy, took over the Shaw's longest role, and Shaw enacted the other's regular small assignment. Both said it was a stimulating experience.

down on the sofa again, and things become quiet. The Smiths turn from celebrities into citizens. Three or four couples they have met survive as good companions and friends.

But after 65 even good companions are fussy and bother, and quite television evenings at home with bedtime at 9:15 become the most intimate friends.

Connection with a church has been established, the best grocery market has been located, the dime store has become a familiar friend and the children are coming down next spring for a visit.

Sad Way of Life

Smith wakes up at 6:30 every morning and starts cooking his own breakfast and making coffee for his wife. Mrs. Smith sews, mostly for her grandchildren.

About the most important event of any day is the arrival of the mailman. Next comes the joint expedition to the grocery market. Or perhaps a light socket has broken and Smith goes down to the dime store to buy a replacement.

There is a nap after lunch, an early supper, the early television shows and early to bed. If this sounds a little sad, it sounds about as it is. People keep going to delightful places for their Golden Years under the false impression that these delightful places are going to do something to them.

Places Do Nothing

Delightful places don't do things to people at 65. People do things to places.

But since they expect places to do things for them, they sit and wait and wait. Then one day the undertaker comes and gets them.

In most retirement areas people can find all sorts of dragons to kill and treasures to pluck if only they get up and go after something instead of expecting something to come to the door.

New Comedy Disappointing

Music Delightful on Bernstein's Young People's Concert

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The first episode of the new NBC comedy series starring Nanette Fabray on Friday was dedicated to setting the scene for adventures to come.

We picked up the McGoverns, played by Nanette and co-star Wendell Corey, immediately after their marriage and en route to Los Angeles and his two children. Well, now we've met the family and maybe things will start to pick up. However, the first show was a disappointment. It was played far too broadly by all concerned, and was full of pretty tired situations and dialogue. Nanette Fabray is a great comedienne and seems wasted in this trifle.

There was another premiere over the weekend — the season's first young people's concert on CBS Sunday afternoon. The music by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra was delightful. Conductor Leonard Bernstein, enunciating carefully and speaking with such stark simplicity it was almost patronizing, explained about overtures. I suppose the music lectures are what give this series an excuse for the music, but I did find teacher a bit long-winded and wished for more Philharmonic and less Bernstein.

Your Money's Worth Russia Lies About Ruble Devaluation

BY SYLVIA PORTER
Today and during the next couple of months, Russia's millions of citizens are turning in 10 of their pre-1961 rubles for one new one — and as they line up at bank windows to make the exchange, they're hearing the pleasant propaganda that their new ruble is worth $1.11.

It is outrageous that we should sit by quietly while the Soviets mock us with another skillful money murder. Even if those within the Soviet orbit don't hear the facts, the free world must realize that Russia is daring to publicize a slash of more than 55 per cent in the value of her ruble in terms both of gold and of the U.S. dollar as an upgrading!

One of a Series
In mid-November the Soviet government announced another in a series of currency devaluations under the Communist regime, to take effect in the first three months of 1961. The operation is taking place now.

In this devaluation, the Russians have been ordered to turn in 10 old rubles — each said to have a backing of 0.987412 grams of fine gold — for one new ruble. This new one is declared to have a backing of 0.987412 grams of fine gold.

Boast the Russians: since the U.S. dollar has only 0.8886705 grams of fine gold behind it, clearly the ruble is now worth more than the U.S. dollar in terms of gold. And since, they argue, they're giving the new ruble a value of $1.11, clearly it's worth more than the American greenback. And since they're doing this while gold is flowing out of the U.S. and the American dollar is under attack, Russia is becoming supreme in the currency sphere too.

Now let's get this straight. 1. If the old rubles had been exchanged into the new ones without a devaluation, each new ruble should have 2.22168 grams of fine gold behind it — that's plain arithmetic. Instead, each new ruble is being given 0.987412 grams of fine gold.

Russia has devalued the ruble again, this time by more than 55 per cent. She hasn't upgraded it in terms of gold; she's cut it by more than half.

2. The official rate of the old ruble was 25 cents; so on a basis of a one-for-10 exchange, the new ruble should be worth $2.50. Instead, the value has been placed at $1.11.

Russia has devalued the ruble in terms of the dollar from 25 cents to 11 cents.

Severe Rules
3. No one can turn in rubles to the Russian state bank for gold. Rules against taking rubles out of the country are exceedingly severe and the Kremlin makes the rules without consulting any power. In contrast, you can take your dollars anywhere, spend them as you will. The freedom of our foreign creditors to exchange their dollars into gold is being painfully dramatized right now by the drain on our gold reserves.

4. Foreigners holding the old rubles will be owning nearly worthless paper unless they can exchange before the deadline. Chances are that most rubles circulating outside the Soviet are virtually worthless now.

5. Foreigners living in Moscow have been handed a 10 per cent hike in their cost of living as New Year's present, for Russia has decreed that while one new ruble is to be worth 100 kopecks, a tourist can get only 90 kopecks for $1. Imagine the uproar if we did this!

When the stability of the mighty U.S. dollar is being questioned, the lies about the ruble are particularly infuriating. While we have held the dollar unchanged for over one-quarter century, Russia has just put through another brazen devaluation — and you should recognize it for exactly what it is.

Kimberly Quintet Stretches Victory Streak to Seven

Papermakers Romp, 67-32, Over Chuters

BY JIM HARP

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LITTLE CHUTE—Kimberly had too many guns for an offensively weak St. John High School team and posted an easy 67-32 victory over the Dutchmen here today night before the best crowd of the season.

The win gives Coach Gil Frank's cagers a 7-2 record for the season, with the seven victories coming in succession. For the Chuters, it was the eighth straight loss of the campaign without a victory.

The Papermakers lost little time in displaying their shooting eyes as they drifted to a 7-0 lead in 1:32 of the first period.

Al Hietpas Scores
Al Hietpas banked in a pair of short shots, Dave Minten followed with a long one-hander and Minten bagged a free throw before the Dutchmen were able to dent the scoring column.

Joe Verkuilen hit on a long jump to make it 7-2 but Minten retaliated with another basket to make it 9-2. Ken Diedrich followed up with a long shot for the Chuters to make the score 9-4 and that was as close as the Dutchmen ever came again.

Hitting with consistency on both long and short shots, the Papermakers moved to a 12-4 lead and then upped it to 20-7. At the end of the first period it was 24-9.

In the early minutes of the second period Roy Vandenberg, the Chuters' top scorer of the night with 11 markers, hit two jump

Wiesner Leads Ground Gainers In Hula Bowl

East Wins, 14-7, On Last-Quarter Touchdown Pass

HONOLULU (AP) — They voted Mike Ditka as the outstanding lineman in the East's 14-7 Hula Bowl victory over the West Sunday, but East Coach Joe Kuharich of Notre Dame rates the Pittsburgh all-America end much higher than that.

"Ditka proved that he is one of the great pro prospects of the current college seniors," Kuharich exclaimed after the upset before a crowd of 17,017.

Victory Margin
Ditka caught an 11-yard touchdown pass from Georgia's Francis Tarkenton in the fourth quarter to provide the East's margin of victory. The West had led 7-6 going into the last period.

The game's top ground gainer was Tom Wiesner, University of Wisconsin fullback, who picked up 52 yards in 12 carries for the East.

Tarkenton passed 10 yards to Kentucky's Cal Bird for the first East touchdown.

Washington's Bob Schloredt hit Washington State's Keith Lincoln with a 23-yard pass for the West TD early in the first quarter.

Little Chute's LeNoble Fires 721 Pin Series

Francis "Chesty" LeNoble, of Little Chute, fired a 721 national honor series during a match game on the Eagles alleys, Oshkosh, Saturday night.

In amassing the first 700 or better series of his career LeNoble bowled lines of 244, 254 and 223.

LeNoble's heroics helped the 41 Bowl team, of Appleton, defeat Larry's TV, of Oshkosh, 3,017 to 2,980. The best team line was a 1,048 by the 41 Bowl.

Other leading scorers for the winning team were a 612 by Roger Koehn, a 595 by Ken Bobber and a 594 by Joe Bartman. Ted Dugolenski led the Oshkosh team with a 681 series, including a 268 game. Les Dahms shot a 636.

Pitched 16 Straight Wins

'Schoolboy' Rowe, Famed Hurler, Dies

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Schoolboy Rowe, the big, tough major league pitching great of the 1930s, died Sunday night at his home here after suffering a heart attack.

Baseball records listed his age as 48, but his family said "Schoolboy" as the players used to call him, was really 51.

Rowe, whose real name was Lynwood Thomas, was a scout for the Detroit Tigers. His major league career included nine seasons with Detroit, five with the Philadelphia Phillies, and one with Brooklyn.

He previously had served as a coach on the Tigers' staff and managed in the Detroit farm system.

Rowe was born in Waco, Tex., but grew up in El Dorado, and it was here he got the nickname Schoolboy. As a high school kid, he once pitched against and beat one of his teachers in a semi-pro game.

The headline in the El Dorado Daily News the next morning read, "Schoolboy beats teacher." Rowe's 15 seasons in the majors saw him in one All-Star game (1936) and three World Series. His lifetime record in the big leagues was 158 victories, 101 defeats. His greatest year was 1934, when as a Tiger he won 24 games and lost 8. He was a 19-game winner in each of the next two seasons.

He is tied for the American League record for most consecutive games won in one season—16. They came in 1934.

In one game of the 1934 World Series against the St. Louis Cardinals, Rowe retired 22 consecutive batters. But he also tied an unenviable series record—for most defeats, 5. He won two.

His professional career began in 1932 with Beaumont in the Texas League. In 1933 he went up to Detroit and stayed, except for 1938 in Beaumont, until 1942 when he was traded to Brooklyn. He wound up the 1942 season in Montreal, then went to the Phillies where he completed his major league career in 1949.

Rowe retired from the active ranks in 1951 after managing Wilkesport in the Eastern League and pitching 16 games for the seventh-place club.

Badgers Bid For Second Big 10 Win

MADISON (AP) — Coach John Erickson's Wisconsin basketball team tries for its second Big Ten victory tonight in a meeting with Iowa, one of the fastest teams in the nation.

"We'll be just as ready for Iowa as we were for Michigan," Erickson said Sunday, still beaming over the Badgers' 74-71 triumph against Michigan State. "The kids are eager. And if we get a decent crowd behind us there's no telling what might happen."

In the contest with Michigan State at East Lansing, the Badgers had a comfortable 47-40 lead at the half but had to stave off a strong Spartan effort to close the gap in the last moments.

Michigan State came within one-point with three seconds to go but couldn't stretch it within the time limit.

"Hard play won the game for us," Erickson said. "It was our best of the season."

Dutrisac Hits 25

Erickson had high praise for the entire squad but said Dick Dutrisac, who had 25 points, was the man most responsible for the victory.

"Dutrisac hadn't started a game previously this year but in this one he proved he can play with the best of them and be a good shooter," Erickson said.

Dave VanderMeulen drew praise for his defensive performance against Michigan State's Art Schwarm. Schwarm scored six straight baskets but never got another after VanderMeulen switched to him and Wisconsin led the rest of the way.

Wisconsin had a 54-53 edge in rebounds but, as Erickson explained, the Badgers spotted the crucial ones.

Erickson said Dutrisac, VanderMeulen, Tom Hughbanks, Pat Richter, Marty Garrity and subs Ken Siebel, Tom Gwyn and Jack Ullwelling, will be in action again tonight.

Iowa's Hawkeyes won the Los Angeles Classic during the holiday season and have a 484-359 rebound edge over their 10 opponents so far. The team is shooting at a .435 average.

The Hawkeyes have nine victories in 10 starts, the last seven of them all triumphs. The only loss was at the hands of St. Louis by a score of 61-55.

Combes Says OSU Defense Is Better Than Last Season

Buckeyes Open Title Defense With Easy Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio State's highly favored Buckeyes, rarely lacking on offense, are threatening to torment their foes additionally with frustrating defensive tactics.

That was the story Saturday night when the NCAA champions opened defense of their Big Ten title with a swamping, 91-65, victory over Illinois.

So mighty were the top-ranked Buckeyes that Illinois Coach Harry Combes said "It wasn't even a contest. Ohio State is better defensively than it was last year."

OSU Coach Fred Taylor agreed and called it his club's best defensive game of the season. But he had special praise for senior Larry Siegfried, although All-America Jerry Lucas led the attack with 35 points.

"I've never seen Siegfried play a better game," said Taylor. "He was simply phenomenal."

1-Man Press

Siegfried scored 18 points and flustered the Illini with his "one-man press." And the Buckeyes used 16 men with 10 getting into the scoring column. Illinois was held to 27 points in the first half and did much of its scoring after Taylor cleared the bench.

While the Buckeyes were having their fun, Indiana, Iowa, Purdue and Wisconsin scored opening-round victories.

Indiana whipped Michigan, 81-73, at Ann Arbor; Iowa completely outclassed Minnesota, 71-46; Purdue defeated Northwestern, 79-64; and Wisconsin pulled a mild sur-

John Thomas Clears 7 Feet Twice More

High Jump Star Being Sought by Moscow Caller

BOSTON (AP) — John Thomas, clicking off those seven-foot high jumps again, eagerly awaits another crack at the Soviets and may get it sooner than he hoped.

In fact the Soviets are looking for the Boston University junior — via trans Atlantic telephone from Moscow.

The story of this hunt from 4,600 miles away came out today following Thomas' 50th and 51st leaps of seven feet or more in less than two years.

Thomas cleared 7-1/2 on the second try, 7-1/2 on the first, then missed three efforts to tie his indoor mark of 7-2 1/2 in a dual meet at Dartmouth Saturday. Prior to that he won a heat and the finals in the 45-year high hurdles.

Thomas disclosed that Moscow has been placing calls twice daily to him for a week but so far the Soviets haven't made connections.

The calls (it is seven hours later in Moscow) come before John arrives at school or while he is in class.

The AAU is trying to get Soviet high jumpers to the United States for some of the winter meets.

Is the call a challenge from the Reds? An invitation for Thomas to compete in the Soviet Union? Or just another Soviet publication delving into the secrets of Thomas' consistency?

"I don't know, but when I finally get to talk to them I'm going to do my best to see if they won't send over some jumpers for the indoor meets," Thomas says.

John's only defeat since he entered college cost him the Olympic gold medal. After clearing 7-1/2, Thomas missed 7-1 which was made by the Soviet pair of Robert Shavlakadze and Valeriy Brumel.

Thomas, at 19, is a leading exponent of diplomacy by amateur athletes.

"America's athletes could be her best representative if we were given a chance," John says. "When we met and visited Soviet athletes during the Olympics nobody ever mentioned national issues or politics. We talked about sports, girls and food."

Hall, who already has blanketed the opposition a half-dozen times this season, had another white-washing in the works until Ed Shack scored for the Leafs with just one minute to play.

In other games, the New York Rangers scored by Larry Schmitt Saturday night were only five less than the Montreal Canadiens, 4-2, and the entire output of Wausau New- the Detroit Red Wings snapped to man High School. Schmitt led De- with a 5-3 decision over the Boston Bruins.

Indiana will try to step out in front of the leaders tonight when it takes on Michigan State, and Wisconsin and Iowa will meet at Madison to see which team de- serves contender status.

Willie Davis Dodgers' Top Rookie Prospect

Camilli, Richert Also Get Shots At LA Club

BY JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Unless scouting reports are worthless, Willie (The Wisp) Davis 20-year-old newcomer to the Los Angeles Dodgers, should win the National League's 1961 rookie award hands down.

The fleet center fielder, one of 15 freshmen on the Dodger roster, is regarded a virtual certainty to earn a big league berth. He has plenty of credentials. Last year with Spokane, he led the Pacific Coast League in six departments and won the most valuable player award.

In addition to winning the batting title with a .346 mark, Davis led in stolen bases (30), hits (216), runs (126), total bases (347) and set a league record with 26 triples. And he did it all despite a pulled leg muscle which handicapped him the first month of the season, when his average dipped well below .300.

Davis' spectacular performance overshadowed Charley Smith, 23, who is expected to give Jim Gilliam a tussle for the Dodger third base job. Smith, a 160-pound shortstop at Spokane, batted .322, out-homered Davis 22 to 12, and drove in more runs, 106 to 75. He lacks polish on defense, but makes up for it with a powerful arm.

Another bright prospect is catcher Doug Camilli, son of the Dodgers' slugging first baseman; two decades ago. The strapping youngster batted .281 at Atlanta last year and impressed Manager Walter Alton in a brief whirl with the Dodgers last September. In 24 times at bat, he rapped six hits, including two doubles and a home run, and drove in three runs. He handled himself well behind the plate, too.

Hits 26 Doubles
Doug hit 26 doubles, 4 triples and 13 home runs in the Southern Association, driving in 78 runs in 131 games.

Two of the finest pitchers up from the minors will be in the Dodgers' spring training camp at Vero Beach, Fla. They are right-hander Jim Golden and southpaw Pete Richert. Golden won 20, lost nine and posted a 2.32 earned run average with St. Paul in the American Association. He pitched the most innings, 237, and the most complete games, 14. Richert, still on the Atlanta roster, broke the 40-year-old Southern Association record by striking out 251 batters in 255 innings. He won 19, lost 9, pitched 6 shutouts and turned in a 2.76 ERA.

Third baseman Bob Aspromonte, who had a brief stay with the Dodgers last year, is back. This time his bid is supported by a .329 batting average built at St. Paul. Other infielders include first baseman Tim Harkness, who batted .293 with 28 home runs and 111 runs batted in at Atlanta, and Mel Corbo, who divided the 1960 season between Macon and Green Bay, and shortstops Dick Tracew- ski, a .288 hitter at Atlanta, and Ralph Plumlee, a first year play- er who batted .254 with Odessa.

shots and Rick Polman added one for Kimberly to make it 26-13.

The Papermakers went on a rampage hitting 10 straight points and pushing the margin to 36-13. Kimberly played the entire second quarter with reserves.

St. John went from 6:33 to 1:04 without scoring a point and managed only five in the entire period. At the intermission it was 36-14.

The Papermaker starters went into action again in the early part of the third quarter and increased the lead to 51-15 as the Chuturs were limited to a lone free throw while Kimberly racked up 15 markers.

Scoreless Stretch

St. John went scoreless from the start of the third quarter until Ken Diedrich dropped a free throw at 3:22. The first and only Chuter basket of the period was by Vandenberg at 1:35. Gib Hietpas added a free throw as St. John counted four points in the eight minutes.

Kimberly reserves again saw the major share of the action in the final frame, as the Dutchmen outscored the victors 14-12. St. John had three buckets in the quarter and eight free throws.

Nine players scored for Kimberly and Dave Minten led the way with 13 points, while Al Hietpas added 10.

Vandenberg's five field goals were half of the team total of 10. The Chuturs also had trouble from the free throw line getting 12 out of 29.

St. Louis Deals Celtics One of Worst Defeats

Petit Injured as Hawks Win, 133-104; Philadelphia Loses

The Hawks won the ball game, the Celtics drew the blood, the fans sat on their hands and Auer- back kept face with all.

That's the story of Sunday's na- tionally televised National Basket- ball Association game between the Hawks and the Celtics.

The Hawks came out on top by a whopping 133-104 margin. The Celtics drew the blood, the fans sat on their hands and Auer- back kept face with all.

With 2:37 left in the first half, the Hawks were leading 28-12.

Xavier Freshmen Register Sixth Straight Victory

Someone—still unidentified — val- lope Hawk ace Bob Pettit. He suffered a 1 1/2-inch gash alongside his left eye and had to retire for repairs.

Eggs Last Time
The last time the Celtics showed up in St. Louis, the spectators came equipped with plenty of eggs. This time they confined themselves to cheering the locals on.

Boston Coach Red Auerbach had only one technical foul call against him.

In the other two league games Sunday, the Syracuse Nationals, the Detroit Pistons, the New York Knick- ers, the Philadelphia Warriors, 121-119.

The Nats broke a 60-all halftime deadlock and exploded in the third roll in 22 markers while the Chut- ers had eight.

Tim Garvey scored 17 points to pace Xavier and Paul Putzer fol- lowed with 11.

For the Dutchmen, Van Asten counted seven and Evers six.

Xavier plays Thursday at Sey- mour.

NCAA Won't Comment on McGuire Case

Council Meets to Consider Violations Of Athletic Code

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Frank McGuire was close to the hot seat. Bud Wilkinson hoped to relinquish it. Tulsa and Southern California stood by ready to resume their places as members in good standing with the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

This was the situation today as the powerful 18-man NCAA council met to consider reported violations of its athletic code.

McGuire, North Carolina's successful (155 won-47 lost) basketball coach said Sunday, "I'm innocent. The school is innocent." He replied to questions concerning the NCAA's investigation of the "Tar Heels" basketball recruiting program.

Wilkinson, famed football coach and athletic director of the Oklahoma Sooners, said, "I am hopeful. You know it was a long time ago. But you never know."

He spoke of a football recruiting fund in existence at Oklahoma between 1952 and 1954. Its disclosure brought indefinite probation for the Sooners last year and barred Oklahoma from postseason play.

Wilkinson's "you never know" recalled the case of Southern Cal. scheduled to be removed from probation two years ago but handed an additional two-year penalty. This time the Trojans expect to be restored to good graces, as does Tulsa, which was hit with a one-year probation the same time Oklahoma was censured.

No Comment

In the case of North Carolina, the NCAA had no comment. Executive Director Walt Byers finally admitted the investigation was in progress (it has been going on for a year and a half) after the Associated Press reported the appearance of McGuire and three other North Carolina representatives at Sunday's council meeting.

Byers did say, however, that he expected to make an announcement in the cases of Oklahoma, Tulsa and Southern Cal.

Precedent was broken when the NCAA said North Carolina was being investigated. It was expected to be shattered again if North Carolina is exonerated. Usually the NCAA makes no announcement when schools under investigation are found innocent, but the North Carolina case received far more than the usual publicity.

Chancellor William Aycock made North Carolina's presentation. He was accompanied by McGuire, Athletic Director Chuck Erickson and Dean Smith, assistant basketball coach.

It was the third time the university had gone before the council, and thus the third time the NCAA's committee on infractions, which does the preliminary work, had referred the case to the council for disposition.

North Carolina's appearance was voluntary. As McGuire put it: "We're innocent. That's why we came here—to prove it."

Only top-ranked Ohio State, the defending NCAA champion, seems safe from a testing week's program that should indicate the strength of a perfect record list that includes Bradley, Louisville, DePaul and Vanderbilt.

The Buckeyes, who rolled to their 10th straight victory this season and 15th in a row, 91-65 over Illinois in their Big Ten opener Saturday, play small college power Evansville at Columbus tonight before traveling to sub-par Northwestern Saturday.

Something has to give Saturday when Louisville (13-0) and DePaul (9-0) meet at Chicago. First, DePaul has a game at Ohio U. at Athens on Tuesday.

Bradley's test comes Thursday at Houston—the last team to beat the Braves (12-0) in their two-season rush to an 18-game winning streak. Vanderbilt (10-0) this season puts its 12-game winning streak on the line against always tough Kentucky at home tonight before meeting Mississippi State on the road Saturday. Mississippi State chopped the unbeaten list down to the Fidgety Five last Saturday with a 56-48 upset of 10th-ranked Auburn, which had won 15 in a row and had captured 35 straight home games.

Last week's play, swinging the college season into the heat of the conference races that determine the bulk of the national tournament lineups in March, produced few surprises in addition to Auburn's loss.

Unranked DePaul, well-balanced with an attack led by 5-foot-9 Howie Carl, got past a tough road game with Dayton, 75-64, as all five starters hit double figures and Carl cashed 24. Fourth-ranked Louisville, with husky John Turner scoring 31 points, blitzed Marquette at Milwaukee, 84-63, and Vanderbilt handed Tennessee its first home court defeat of the season, 68-66.

All America Jerry Lucas had 35 points in Ohio State's romp over Illinois, and second-ranked Bradley kept rolling at the top of the Missouri Valley Conference, defeating Tulsa 76-66 as 6-foot-6 Chet Walker scored 46 points.

Third-ranked St. Bonaventure (11-1) got 32 points from soph star Fred Crawford and 23 from Tom Stith in a 89-78 victory over Duquesne; sixth-ranked North Carolina (8-2) went on a 9-1 burst in the last three minutes and beat Notre Dame 73-71 on Jim Hudock's basket at the buzzer; seventh-ranked Iowa (9-1) toyed with Minnesota 71-46. Duke, No. 8, was triggered by sophomore Art Heyman's 27 points and 16 rebounds in an 81-67 rout of North Carolina State for its 11th in 12 games; and ninth-ranked UCLA avenged Friday's loss to Washington with a 62-58 decision over the Huskies.

couldn't be a time more ripe to be taken," Hickey said. "Louisville was riding high with a 12-game winning streak and playing at home with fan support we could have caught them napping."

The next opponent, Detroit, has a 9-3 record for the season and uses 6-foot-6 Charlie North and 6-foot-5 Dave DeBusschere as the main power drivers. Marquette will enter the contest with a 7-5 record.

Vince Says He Won't Be Leaving

Green Bay Coach Can't Understand Persistent Rumors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach Vince Lombardi, who opened practice with his All-Star football squad today, says he has no intention of leaving the Green Bay Packers.

"I don't know why the rumors persisted that I was going to New York," Lombardi said. "I am definitely remaining in Green Bay."

It is time to put to rest once and for all, he said, rumors that he is contemplating leaving the club to become the head coach of the New York Giants.

"A year ago the Giants asked permission of Green Bay to talk to me and they got it," Lombardi said. "I spoke to them at that time, as I might with any club which asked such permission."

Lombardi said the rumors just kept coming up. "Once and for all I want to put them to rest. I'm staying right where I am. I'm happy in Green Bay," he said.

Government Patronage Job List Longer Than Democrats Thought

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — With characteristic regard for detail, the national Democratic committee under the control of the Kennedy forces has prepared an elaborate index of available national government patronage positions under the new national administration.

Copies of the scarce document have been received by key Wisconsin Democrats, including a couple in the state capitol.

Perusal of the book already has disclosed that there are more appointive jobs available to the new administration than local party chieftains had guessed. But inquiries also have indicated that the Kennedy general staff is insisting upon the nomination of high caliber candidates. The man who can offer only a desire for a job need not apply, according to these hints.

Names of some potentially eligible Wisconsin Democrats has already been submitted by the state party hierarchy that will handle federal patronage for this state.

Trade circles hear rumors that the trading stamp companies will ask the new legislature to amend the trading stamp law to permit premium redemption. Wisconsin has always required cash redemption. The fights among merchants on the trading stamp issue have been among the most bitter and protracted in past legislative history.

R. C. Salisbury, widely known for his many years of work as chief of the state Highway Safety Promotion Program, will be appointed to the staff of the new legislature when it is organized.

Salisbury retired on pension from the State Motor Vehicle Department several years ago and last fall made a sacrifice run on the Republican ticket for a county office in overwhelmingly Democratic Dane County.

State Treasurer Eugene Lamb left the office of state treasurer last week, telling reporters that he is not yet sure that he will retire from politics as a result of his defeat in the November elections. But some of the chief Democratic organization men are reasonably sure they want to recruit another nominee for the state treasury spot on the ballot next time. Lamb made an ineffectual campaign, they say.

Rep. Lester Johnson of Black River Falls, the Democratic representative of the Ninth district, can claim some credit for the selection of Minnesota's Orville Freeman as the next U. S. secretary of agriculture, as the story is told by Wisconsin state administration Democrats. As their tale has it, President-elect Kennedy was discussing the agricultural secretary selection and appeared to be leaning to a non-Midwesterner when Johnson reminded him that he had "promised" an appointment from the middle west when he campaigned here.

Kennedy asked a staffer to check, and found that he had, indeed, made such a pledge. Thereupon the aspirants from other regions were dismissed and the search was confined to the midwest, with the result that Freeman was chosen.

State Senator-elect Jerris Leonard of Milwaukee is playing it smart as he prepared to take his seat with the Republican state Senate majority. As an assemblyman for several terms and a junior leader of the GOP in the lower house in 1959, he can probably claim some preference in state Senate work assignments. But he has told the upper house leaders that he will be content with whatever committee they feel he should serve and has made some friends as a result. One of the most difficult problems in the organization of a legislative house is the conflict among members for prize committee seats.

One problem that worries higher education officials of the state, as they ponder the advisability of eastern admission and performance standards to counteract the enormous bulge in university and college enrollments, is the tendency for girls to have higher scholarship attainment on the average than their male counterparts among applicants.

Thus there is a chance that if the academic requirements are boosted, according to these sources, more girls than boys will be admitted and the problem of supplying scientists, technicians, engineers and others may not be met.

Matthias Schimenz, the Industrial Commission chairman who has been seriously ill for several months, will return to his statehouse office next week, his family has informed the commission staff.

Gov. Nelson is pondering the selection of two new members of the state Conservation Commission to succeed Arthur MacArthur of Janesville and Russell Stouffer of Shell Lake, Republican holdovers.

If the governor's new nominees are confirmed by the Republican state Senate, his men will have a four to two control margin on the commission. The Republican senate offered no objections last year when the governor named John Lynch of Superior and Paul Olson of Madison.

Paul Corbin, the Janesville promotion man and politician who rose high in the councils of the Kennedy campaign machine last year, is expected to move to Washington soon, according to statehouse Democrats.

Corbin is now working as an aide to Robert Kennedy and is likely to be named to a job in the Department of Justice when Kennedy takes over as U. S. attorney general.

The Wisconsin Civil War Centennial Commission hopes to persuade the new legislature to pause in its deliberations near the end of the month for a program before a joint session devoted to Wisconsin in relation to the Civil War.

There is more speculation about J. J. Keliher, the state auditor whose term will expire soon, than about any other prominent state administrative official in similar circumstances.

Will Gov. Nelson reappoint him to another six-year term?

The guessing is that Nelson doesn't want to do so, but that he probably won't be able to get a successor confirmed because Keliher has some good and powerful friends in the state senate who would protest his departure from the state service. He is a career man who rose to the top of his service 12 years ago.

Gov. Nelson's new term will give him the right to name two new members of the Board of Regents of State Colleges, if he chooses to do so, and some of the educational officials are speculating that a Nelson-chosen majority on the board will probably name a new chairman of the group.

W. D. McIntyre, Eau Claire businessman, has been chairman for many years. When he was returned for another year in 1960, several regents hinted that they disapprove of perennial tenure for the board head.

State Democratic organization men are considering ways and means of getting a wider distribution of their party propaganda organ among the uncommitted residents of the state and into local places of business. At the last session of the state Democratic committee there were some envious comparisons with the sheet being distributed by the Republican state headquarters.

One of the first orders of business before the state senate when it convenes will be a confirmation vote on the interim appointment of William Nuesse as state banking commissioner by Gov. Nelson. The deputy commissioner and civil service career man was chosen when Paul McGettigan, Darlington banker and Nelson's first choice, decided that his health would not permit him to take the job.

Giddings Firm Losses More Than in 1959

Machine Tool Maker
Loses $1.2 Million;
Shipments Decrease

Giddings and Lewis Machine Tool Co., Fond du Lac, will report a total net loss of about $1,200,000 for 1960, compared with a loss of $223,190 in 1959, Ralph J. Kraut, president, said in a special letter to stockholders.

The loss from regular operations was about $495,000 during 1960, after tax carry-back of $335,000, he said. In addition, management decided to charge all possible losses to 1960 partly to get substantial tax carry-back refunds.

The extraordinary losses, after tax carry-back, amount to $711,000 and stem from expenses of developing new product lines, moving its Bickford operation to Wisconsin from Cincinnati and the 1960 machine tool exposition in Chicago.

Shipments Less

Shipments for 1960, also based on unaudited figures, were "slightly less" than the $16,000,657 of 1959, largely because of delays in completing newer models, Kraut said.

The company's internal management forecast for 1961 is based on outlook for profitable operations, he said. The backlog of orders is "substantially higher" than a year ago, although still "far from satisfactory." The company has reduced overhead employment more than 15 per cent, and aims to save $2 million through cost-cutting measures in 1961.

Kraut said he looks for an "up-surge" in capital equipment buying in 1961 after a "three-year machine tool depression" caused by inflation-induced high prices, more foreign competition, more use of venture capital abroad rather than in the U.S. and government sales of surplus machine tools at low prices.

Fire Burns as Firemen Fizzle

TOMPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—While fire equipment fizzled, the home of B. O. Jackson Jr. burned.

The Jacksons were at church Sunday when their home caught fire. In order:

1. The siren used to notify volunteer firemen wouldn't work.
2. Trying to start the fire truck, someone flooded the engine and the battery ran down.
3. Firemen pushed the truck downhill, started it, arrived at the scene, hooked a hose to a nearby hydrant and turned it on.
4. Out came a mere trickle of water. The pipeline apparently was blocked.
5. By carrying water on two more trucks, firemen saved an apartment next door belonging to Jackson's mother.

Only a freezer was rescued from Jackson's home.

Carolina Governor Sending Children to Integrated School

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Gov. and Mrs. Terry Sanford plan to enroll their two children at an integrated public school here today.

They said the presence of one Negro pupil at the Murphy Elementary School, a block and a half from the executive mansion, would not deter them from sending Betsy Sanford, 11, and Terry Sanford Jr., 7, there.

White children who live in the area of the governor's official residence normally would attend the school. The governor said he expects his children to be treated like the children of any other family.

Heavy Volume in Early Afternoon on

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .90 to 224.40 with industrials up 1.00, rails up .70 and utilities up .50.

A brighter business outlook included reports of a pickup in steel orders, a rise in auto sales, and government proposals for bigger housing and education programs.

West Virginia's Earnings Drop, Sales Rise Again

Earnings of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., New York, declined 6 per cent in fiscal 1960 from the year before, although sales rose for the eighth consecutive year, David L. Luke, president, said in the annual report.

Luke attributed the lower profit to general business conditions and installation and start-up costs of a new paper-making machine at the Luke, Md., mill.

Earnings for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 were $11 million, or $2.07 a share, compared with $11.8 million, or $2.21 a share, for fiscal 1959. Sales rose to $230,282,000 from $233,123,000.

The president reported the company spent $33 million in expanding plants and equipment during fiscal 1960, raising capital expenditures over the past 10 years to $220 million.

West Virginia Pulp's polychemical division should "begin to be a gradually increasing contributor to earnings," Luke predicted. He said the division is developing commercial uses for lignin, an organic chemical found in wood.
